Introduction

The Skills Funding Agency's Business Plan 2013-14 sets out our priorities, and the actions we will take, to deliver the ambitions of Government as set out in New Challenges, New Chances, the Skills Funding Agency Priorities and Funding Letter and Rigour and Responsiveness in Skills.

We will deliver a high-quality service that puts education and training for learners and employers at the forefront of our work. Through the way we direct the funds that we manage, we will make sure that the investment Government makes contributes to national economic growth and helps release the potential of businesses, people, local economies and communities.

I know that there are challenges ahead and our Business Plan describes how we will address those challenges in the year ahead.

Under my leadership and through our Executive Management Team, the Agency will consolidate its reputation for delivering consistently high levels of technical excellence and expertise in relation to how we commission and fund providers and employers on behalf of BIS and DfE.

We will continue to develop technically-sound, reliable, highly transparent and clearly-described processes to identify the best college and independent training organisations and to manage our budgets effectively and responsibly. We will report clearly and accurately on what has been funded and what has been delivered.

We will at all times drive for value for money. We will ensure the investment made in learning and training – be that whole or in part by the taxpayer, employer or learner – is spent with confidence on high-quality programmes, delivered by high-quality colleges and independent training organisations. We will continue to ask more of the Register of Approved Training Providers so that the selection process is both rigorous and searching.

Alongside technically sound systems for commissioning and managing funding, we will implement the findings from our strategic review of qualifications and establish a new Register of Qualifications approved for public funding. This register will ensure the publicly-funded offer is relevant, high quality, and is easy for learners and employers to understand and navigate, whilst maintaining its responsiveness in a rapidly changing economy.

We will continue to drive up Apprenticeship numbers and will create an additional 60,000 opportunities for 16 to 24 year-olds by stimulating employer demand for apprentices, including those at higher levels. We will also make sure that the new traineeship will offer a clearly signposted pathway onto an Apprenticeship and that it will increase both employer and apprentice satisfaction rates.

My own pledge is that we will further simplify and streamline our systems and the way we interact with the sector to ensure that we keep both bureaucracy and complexity to an absolute minimum. Guidance will be crystal clear - thus freeing the sector to concentrate on meeting the needs of its learners, communities and partners. Through the Further Education Technical Advisory Group, the Qualifications Advisory Group and other stakeholder forums, we will seek the advice of the sector on how we can improve systems, process and guidance even further.

We want to ensure we describe how the sector is responding to local needs and the ambitions of Local Enterprise Partnerships and other stakeholders and we will develop and publish new reports that will quantify and assess responsiveness to local needs as part of our work on Open Data.

The Agency will drive forward the Government's ambition for a skills system that is more employer owned, in the way we administer the Employer Ownership Pilots and the outcomes from the Richard Review of Apprenticeships. We will monitor carefully the introduction of Advanced Learning Loans with the Student Loans Company and, through the information and support we provide to the sector, ensure that this important change in the way the FE offer is funded is delivered effectively.

Kim Thorneywork

Interim Chief Executive of Skills Funding

Vision – The Skills Funding Agency strives at all times to deliver a high-quality service that puts education and training for learners and employers at the forefront of its work, and works in a way that demonstrates the values of the Civil Service.

Mission – To fund and promote further education and skills in England so that they make a full contribution to economic growth and meet the needs of learners and employers.

Strategic Objectives

1. We will fund and monitor the performance of the further education and skills system in the simplest possible way, so as to assure Parliament on the spend of public funds.
2. We will continue to implement a simplified, robust and self-sustaining funding system that enables the further education and skills sector to be responsive to current and future customer demands for socially and economically valuable learning.
3. We will achieve efficiencies and value for money in what we do and through our arrangements with delivery partners.
4. We will work to rebalance the further education offer so that it responds to local needs and therefore supports national economic growth.
5. We will make our data available to the public in an open and transparent way so that it supports learners and employers to make choices, and demonstrates the impact of further education and skills.
6. We will work to create one Agency that is recognised by our stakeholders as the best in Government by being professional, expert, responsive and transparent.

These strategic objectives reflect the context, ambitions and investment plans as set out in:

- New Challenges, New Chances (August 2011)
- Skills Funding Statement 2012-2015 (December 2012)
- FE College Capital Investment Strategy (December 2012)
- Skills Funding Agency Priorities and Funding Letter 2013/14 (April 2013)
- Rigour and Responsiveness in Skills (April 2013)

Agency Themes

In order to achieve our strategic objectives, we need to ensure that we operate through a common culture that is optimal for business delivery.

1. We strive to be excellent in all that we do and to ensure that we share our expertise and knowledge across and outside the organisation.
2. We operate in a changing environment, so the Agency and its people must have the resilience and flexibility to adapt to new challenges as they arise.
3. We are one Agency with a common culture irrespective of locality or function and with clear accountabilities and cross-team working that deliver high-quality outputs.
4. As a technical Agency, we understand our funding function and the data we produce, how that relates to what each of us does and we can talk about it confidently and without the use of jargon.
