Sources of Statistics

Last Updated: 9 March 2015

This briefing paper brings together sources of statistics on 27 subject areas covered by the Economic Policy & Statistics and Social & General Statistics sections of the House of Commons Library. In doing so it draws upon the knowledge of Library specialists, aiming to provide comprehensive topic-by-topic guides for use by anyone interested in the statistical series that underpin the United Kingdom.

Topics covered by this series include:

Constituency profiles and an introduction to constituency level data.

(Social statistics) Agriculture; charities; crime; civil service; defence; education; elections; energy; environment; local government; health; housing; migration; parliament; population; transport; vital statistics (demography); social security.

(Economic statistics) Business; growth; industries; inflation and prices; interest rates; labour market; public finances and taxation; trade.

About this briefing paper

This briefing paper brings together sources of statistics on 27 subject areas covered by the Economic Policy & Statistics and Social & General Statistics sections of the House of Commons Library. In doing so it draws upon the knowledge of Library specialists, aiming to provide comprehensive topic-by-topic guides for use by anyone interested in the statistical series that underpin the United Kingdom.

Each of the 27 subject-specific notes contained within this publication exists as an independent briefing paper online. Refer to each independent briefing paper for the most up-to-date version of each subject-specific note.

All sources referenced in this series follow the same quick-reference format:

- Hyperlinked sources direct to the named publication. In cases where a publication is regularly updated or is part of a series this hyperlink directs to the top-level contents page of the series in question.
- Author/authority responsible for the source’s publication.
- Area the source covers.
- Geographies for which data is available (for example, this DWP data series provides data for the constituencies, regions and countries of the UK).
- Frequency with which updates to a series are published (for example, annually).
- Series start date (and, where appropriate, end date).
This note is a guide to constituency statistics on a range of topics. For in depth examination of individual topics, please refer to other Sources of Statistics guides in this series.

Introduction: parliamentary geographies and constituency profiles

Official statistics are primarily available from the Office for National Statistics (ONS), Government departments and associated agencies for a range of geographies. This “federalism” of statistical authorities means there can be different approaches to compiling data between sources.

Constituency boundaries in England, Wales and Northern Ireland have been in place since 2010; previous constituencies were in place since 1997. In Scotland, current constituencies have been in place since 2005.

An interactive map of constituencies in Great Britain is available from the ONS; this tool further provides a socio-economic profile for each constituency. The ONS’ guide to parliamentary constituencies explains the relationship between the constituencies of the House of Commons, National Assembly of Wales, Scottish Parliament and Northern Ireland Assembly. Its annual Data Catalogue brings together a searchable index of all ONS statistics available at constituency level.

- Interactive maps for parliamentary constituencies in Great Britain
  (Office for National Statistics; Great Britain)

- Guide to parliamentary constituencies
  (Office for National Statistics; constituencies for the Westminster Parliament and devolved legislatures)

- ONS Data Catalogue for parliamentary constituencies
  (Office for National Statistics; constituency level statistics for UK, England and Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland; annual update)

Constituency profiles are available from three Library products. An interactive socio-economic profile is available by constituency from the UK Parliament’s My Constituency app, available from iTunes. Constituency Explorer, an interactive online tool created by the Library, ESRC and University of Durham, allows users to explore and compare a range of social and economic data by constituency; constituency profiles are also available for download.

- Constituency Explorer
  (House of Commons Library, University of Durham, ESRC; Westminster constituencies)

- My Constituency App – UK Parliament
  (UK Parliament, House of Commons Library; available from iTunes)

- Constituency profiles – House of Commons Library
  (House of Commons Library; UK wide)

- Constituency population & demography statistics – Census 2011 profiles
  (House of Commons Library tabulation tool; Westminster constituencies)
Charities
The Department for Culture, Media and Sport’s Lottery Grants search tools allows users to search all records of National Lottery grants received by constituency since 1995.

- DCMS Lottery Grants Search
  (Department for Culture, Media and Sport; UK, countries, region, constituency; since 1995)

See the Sources of Statistics: Charities, social action and civil society guide for further information.

Education
The Department for Education provides school and college performance tables available to search online for constituencies in England. The Department’s Schools, pupils and their characteristics publication provides data on the number of schools and pupils by area.

- School and college performance tables
  (Department for Education; by school, constituency and local authority; England)

- Schools, pupils and their characteristics
  (Department for Education; by school, constituency and local authority; England)
  Note: school level data is contained within the “underlying data” download linked to each annual release, together with constituency indicators)

Figures for young people who went into education, employment or training the year after they completed key stage 4 or 5 are also available by constituency. The Skills Funding Agency provides statistics by constituency on entrants into Further Education. HEFCE’s trends in young participation by constituency examine the proportion of young people who enter higher education by the age of 19; UCAS’ End of Cycle report details the entire Higher Education admissions cycle for the preceding year.

- Destinations of key stage 4 and key stage 5 pupils
  (Department for Education; by school, constituency and local authority; England)

- Further Education and Skills data by geography, equality and diversity
  (Skills Funding Agency; England; by constituency, local authority and region)

- Trends in young participation by parliamentary constituency
  (Higher Education Funding Council for England; by constituency; 1998-2011)

- UCAS Analysis Reports
  (University and Colleges Admissions Service; by parliamentary constituency and region)

See the Sources of Statistics: Education guide for further information.
Elections and electorates

For analysis of UK General Election results by Parliamentary constituency, see the Library’s 2001, 2005 and 2010 General Election research papers. Further information on election results is available from the Electoral Commission, founded in 2001; the BBC’s dedicated General Election pages also provide an abundance of statistical information and media analysis.

- General Election results – Electoral Commission (Electoral Commission; from 2001)

Polling data at a constituency level is limited due to the expense of polling local areas. Lord Ashcroft’s collection of constituency polls, collected on a one-off and rolling basis, provide a range of information for constituencies across Great Britain. UK Polling Report’s online constituency guide collates further electoral statistics, latest polls and candidate information.

- Lord Ashcroft Constituency Polls (LordAshcroftPolls; Great Britain, selected constituencies)
- UK Polling Report constituency guides (UK Polling Report; UK Parliamentary Constituencies, by region)

The ONS provides annual publications on electorate registration statistics by constituency. Information on the rural/urban classification of constituencies in England is also available. The Ordnance Survey election maps and boundary tool allows users to compare and overlay multiple administrative geographies.

- Electoral registration and electorate statistics (Office for National Statistics)
- Ordnance Survey election maps and boundary tool (UK Polling Report; UK Parliamentary Constituencies, by region)

Fuel Poverty

The Department of Energy and Climate Change publishes annual statistics on the number and proportion of households that are fuel poor by parliamentary constituency and a range of other small area geographies.

- Fuel Poverty sub-regional statistics (Department of Energy & Climate Change; UK, sub-regions and constituencies; from 2010)
Health Service

Most health service statistics are available for Local Authority, hospital providers or Clinical Commissioning Group but not constituencies. In England, the Health & Social Care Information Centre’s annual Quality Outcomes Framework provides information on patients registered at GP practices and geographical prevalence of disease. The online data tool NOMIS allows users to analyse constituency level data on the general health of usual residents, together with information on providers of unpaid care and the number of hours of care that they provide. Statistics on blood and transplant donation are available in England by constituency from the NHS.

- Quality and Outcomes Framework
  (Health & Social Care Information Centre; England, GPs and CCGs; annual release; since 2004)

- General health statistics, by constituency
  (NOMIS official labour market statistics; England & Wales; a range of output areas inc. constituencies)

- Health and provision of unpaid care
  (NOMIS official labour market statistics; England & Wales; a range of output areas inc. constituencies)

- NHS Blood and Transplant Service statistics
  (NHS Blood and Transport Services; England; by local authority and constituency)

See the Sources of Statistics: Health and Social Care guide for further information.

Housing

DCLG publishes monthly statistics on the government’s Help to Buy equity loan scheme and Help to Buy New Buy scheme; publications include data for England by local authority, postcode sector and parliamentary constituency. Further housing data is available for UK constituencies from the census via the NOMIS online search tool (England & Wales), Scottish Census and from the Northern Ireland Statistics Research Agency.

- Help to Buy statistics
  (Department for Communities and Local Government; England, by constituency; from 2012)

- Census housing statistics, NOMIS (England & Wales)
  (NOMIS census statistics; England & Wales; a range of output areas inc. constituencies)
  Notes: See in particular census variables for dwellings, tenure and rooms.

- Scottish Census 2011 housing statistics (Scotland)
  (Scotland’s Census 2011; Scotland; by a range of geographies including constituencies)

- 2011 Census housing statistics – Northern Ireland
  (Northern Ireland Statistics Research Agency; Northern Ireland; by a range of areas inc. constituencies)

See the Sources of Statistics: Housing guide for further information.
Incomes, taxpayers, tax credits
HMRC’s personal income by tax year statistics provide data on the incomes, income source gender and age of UK taxpayers by Parliamentary constituency. The Income and tax by Parliamentary constituency series provides further information on self-employment, employment and pension income by constituency. DWP’s personal tax credits publications provide summary statistics on individuals and households receiving Working Tax Credits and/or Child Tax Credits by parliamentary constituency.

- Personal income by tax year statistics
  (HM Revenue & Customs; UK, by country, region and constituency; from 2010)

- Income and tax by Parliamentary constituency

- Personal tax credits: finalised award statistics – geographic statistics
  (Department for Work and Pensions; UK, countries, regions and constituencies; from 2008)

See the Sources of Statistics guide on Social Security for further information.

Labour market – unemployment, employment and wages
Monthly data on Jobseeker’s Allowance claimants are presented in the Library’s Unemployment by Constituency research paper (published monthly) and on the Library’s Constituency Profiles intranet pages. Figures on employment and unemployment from the ONS Annual Population Survey may be downloaded from the ONS Nomis website. Data on earnings levels are published by ONS in its Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings release. The annual numbers of apprenticeship starts by constituency are provided in the Library’s note on Apprenticeship Statistics. Figures on the number of Work Programme starts and referrals can be downloaded from the DWP tabulation tool.

- Unemployment by Constituency research papers
  (House of Commons Library; UK, by constituency; monthly)

- ONS NOMIS – Annual Population Survey dataset
  (Office for National Statistics; UK by country, region, local authority and constituency, quarterly)
  Note: data on employment, unemployment and earnings by constituency are survey-based and small numbers of survey respondents mean the data should be interpreted with care.

- ONS Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings
  (Office for National Statistics; UK by region, local authority and constituency; annual)
  Note: data on employment, unemployment and earnings by constituency are survey-based and small numbers of survey respondents mean the data should be interpreted with care.

- Apprenticeships Statistics
  (House of Commons Library; UK, by constituency; quarterly)

- DWP Work Programme Statistics
  (Department for Work and Pensions; GB, by constituency; quarterly)

See the Sources of Statistics guide on the Labour Market for further information.
Population, demography and migration

The ONS’s Neighbourhood statistics online tool provides a range of data on population, gender, age, ethnicity, region, household composition, qualifications and other attributes by Westminster constituency. Data is based on the latest census. Similar tools are available for Scotland and Northern Ireland, though data from the Scottish Neighbourhood Statistics tool is based on constituencies for the Scottish Parliament as opposed to the House of Commons.

- ONS Neighbourhood Statistics (England and Wales)
  (Office for National Statistics; England and Wales, by Westminster constituency)

- Scottish Neighbourhood Statistics (Scotland)
  (Scottish Neighbourhood Statistics, the Scottish Government, Scottish Parliament 2011 Constituencies)

- Northern Ireland Neighbourhood Statistics (Northern Ireland)
  (Northern Ireland Neighbourhood Information Service; Northern Ireland, by Westminster constituency)

For constituency profiles displaying a range of census data, see:

- Data.Parliament constituency statistics – Census 2011 profiles
  (House of Commons Library tabulation tool; Westminster constituencies)

Annual estimates of population size by constituency are available from the ONS’ Small Area Population Estimates, starting mid-2013. Estimates 2002-2013 are available from the ONS’ former series Parliamentary Constituency Population Estimates.

- ONS Small Area Population Estimates
  (Office for National Statistics; data by Westminster Parliamentary constituency; from 2013)

- Parliamentary Constituency Population Estimates 2002-12
  (Office for National Statistics; data by Westminster Parliamentary constituency; 2002-13)

Although data are not available for parliamentary constituencies, ONS publishes migration data for local authorities for both internal and international migration in its Local Area Migration Indicators. It also publishes estimates of resident population with non-British nationality and non-UK country of birth, and data for Migrant National Insurance Number registrations, Flag 4 GP registrations and Workers registrations.

- ONS Local Area Migration Indicators
  (Office for National Statistics; UK, by local authority)

See the Sources of Statistics guides on Vital Statistics, Migration and Population and Religion for further information.
Social security benefits

Data for claimants of jobseekers allowance in the 2010 constituencies is available back to 2004. This can be downloaded from ONS’ National Online Manpower Information System (NOMIS), using the ‘Wizard Query’ option. The DWP tabulation tool gives statistics on a range of social security benefits for constituencies in Britain. Data for before May 2010 are given for the pre-2010 constituencies. The benefits covered include attendance allowance, bereavement benefits, carer’s allowance, disability living allowance, employment and support allowance, jobseekers allowance and incapacity benefit.

A wide range of social security benefits statistics are available at constituency level. For caseload (number of claimants) and average award per claimant, see the DWP tabulation tool (note that pre 2010 statistics are for pre-2010 constituency boundaries) and the ONS’ NOMIS tool.

- ONS Nomis DWP benefits by theme
  (Office for National Statistics; data is available for a range of geographies, including by constituency)
- ONS Nomis Claimant Count statistics
  (Office for National Statistics; data is available for a range of geographies, including by constituency)
- DWP statistics tabulation tool
  (HM Revenue & Customs; UK, by country, region and constituency; from 2010)

With considerable overlap, these tools provide constituency information on:

- The DWP working age client group (which groups together working-age claimants by main reason for claim – this includes the ‘all out of work benefits’ aggregation)

Plus benefit-by-benefit caseload figures on:

- Employment and support allowance and predecessors (Incapacity benefit, Severe Disablement Allowance)
- Income Support
- Job seekers allowance
- Carers allowance
- Disability living allowance (DLA) (entitled cases and cases in payment)
- Attendance Allowance
- Pension credit
- State pension
- Bereavement benefits

Also, the DWP Stat-Xplore tool provides constituency level statistics on:

- Housing Benefit (including the number affected by the under occupation deduction in the social rented sector, also dubbed the ‘Bedroom Tax’ or ‘Removal of the Spare Room Subsidy’ depending on whether one opposes or supports the measure)
- Personal Independence payment (PIP) (introduced in 2013 to replace DLA for working-age claimants)
- Benefit Sanctions (JSA and ESA)
- The ‘Benefit Cap’ (the number of working-age out-of-work households whose total benefit is or has been capped at either £500pw (couples/lone parents) or £350 (single no children) since spring 2013 when it was introduced)

- DWP Stat-Xplore (Housing Benefit, National Insurance, Jobseekers Allowance, Employment and Support Allowance, Personal Independence Payment)
  (Department for Work & Pensions; UK; data is available by a range of geographies including constituencies)
The total amount spent on benefits in each constituency is available from the DWP’s Benefit expenditure and caseload tables.

- DWP Benefits expenditure by Parliamentary constituency 2000/01 to 2013/14
  (Department for Work and Pensions; UK, by country, region and constituencies; from 2000/01)

See the Sources of Statistics: Social Security guide for further information.

Transport and traffic

The Department for Transport’s Traffic Counts online tool provides street-level data for junction-to-junction links of the A road and motorway network in Great Britain. Users can analyse information on specific roads/junctions and by local authority. See the Department for Transport’s road accident and safety statistical tables for small area data on road accidents and casualties.

General and UK wide releases

DEFRA publishes statistics on the environment, family food, the rural economy, farming and farm management, together with livestock numbers and farm-gate commodity prices. Further DEFRA publications examine the structure of the UK’s agricultural industry and organic farming. The Family Food survey is a comprehensive annual survey examining food costs and expenditure for households and individuals in the UK; statistics are broken down by income and other demographics.

- Statistics at Defra: Subjects by Topic
  (Department for Environment, Food & Rural Affairs (Defra); UK wide coverage)
- Family Food statistics
  (Defra; UK wide; annual release from 2002 with estimates from the National Food Survey 1940-2000)
- Structure of the agriculture industry in England and the UK at June
  (Defra; for England and the UK; annual release; from 2012)
- Organic farming statistics
  (Defra; UK wide; annual release; from 2011)

Agricultural regional releases

The Farm Business Survey provides data for farm income, productivity, land management and other performance indicators for farms in England. Datasets with similar coverage are available for Wales and Scotland. The Statistical Review of Northern Ireland provides economic data while the Agricultural Census covers a wide range of other topics.

- Farm Business Survey, England
  (Defra; England only; annual survey into the activities, income & management of farms; from 2010/11)

International agricultural statistics
An array of historic (1990 – 2007), economic and production data is available for each country of the EU from Eurostat; the European Commission also publishes an agricultural fact sheet for each member state. The Commission’s Financing the Common Agricultural Policy pages detail the historical role of the policy, its regulation and place within the European budget. The UN’s FAOSTAT provides global data on food production, prices, balances and security.

- Food & Agricultural Organisation of the United Nations (FAOSTAT, United Nations statistics division; profiles by continent and country)

Fisheries
Fisheries statistics are available for the UK, England, England and Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland from the Marine Management Organisation and devolved legislatures. Fisheries statistics are one of the UK’s longest running data series, extending back to 1866.

- UK Sea Fisheries Annual Statistics (Marine Management Organisation; annual report; since 2012)
- UK Sea Fisheries Statistics, Archive (Marine Management Organisation; annual report; since 1866)
- Marine planning, pollution, licensing, funding, quotas & protected species - England (Marine Management Organisation; England only)
- Salmonid and freshwater fisheries statistics (Environment Agency; England and Wales; since 2010)
- Agriculture and Fisheries Statistics, Scotland (Scottish Government; Scotland; 1990 to 2004)
- Fisheries information & statistics, Northern Ireland (Department of Agriculture and Rural Development; Northern Ireland)
The National Council of Voluntary Organisations, itself an independent charity, and its annual Almanac is the authoritative source for voluntary sector statistics in the UK. Information provided below includes the number of organisations within, size, income and activities of the UK’s voluntary sector, rates of volunteering and charitable giving and further financial information.

From the Library

- Charities, social action and the voluntary sector: statistics

Also see:
- Sources of Constituency Statistics (an introduction to constituency profiles & data)

Charities & the third sector

There are different estimates for the size, income and activities of the voluntary sector. The NCVO collates UK wide statistics based upon the ONS’s ‘general charities’ definition, excluding organisations such as private schools from its research. The Charity Commission provides data from the Register of Charities for England and Wales.

Volunteering & civil society

The Cabinet Office Community Life Survey is the primary source of statistics on volunteering, charitable giving and other measures of civic engagement in England. ‘v’ and the National Citizen Service are schemes the aim of which is to encourage social action among young people, backed by the former Labour government and current Coalition respectively.

Finances & funding
The NCVO provides an authoritative estimation of the income and income sources of the UK’s voluntary sector. Multiple releases are available from the Cabinet Office, Big Lottery Fund and Big Society Capital on the social investment market, a centrepiece of the Coalition’s ‘Big Society’. Funding Central provides funding information and overviews for charities.

General

From crime and solvency rates, to prosecutions and convictions, police officer numbers to prison overcrowding, statistics on crime and justice have been topical for a while. For that reason, longer time series are often available with wide ranging coverage. However, crime statistics have to be used with caution: differing legal systems and jurisdictions, with their origin in separate legal traditions, coupled with varying acts and legislation, mean there is a considerable inconsistency with what and how data is recorded in the constituent nations of the United Kingdom.

Furthermore, problems with the colloquial use of legal terms can lead to confusion when searching for a specific statistic; for example there is no such crime type as ‘domestic abuse’, rather this is an aggravation of a range of offences. The acronym ‘PCSO’ commonly refers to a Community Support Officer, individuals empowered under statute who work alongside sworn police officers, but in Scotland would refer to a custody officer. Community Support Officers nonexistent outwith England and Wales. Burglary is a specific offence in England and Wales under S.9 of the Theft Act 1968, but in Scotland would be the common law crime of ‘Theft by Housebreaking’. Likewise the Police and Criminal Evidence Act (PACE) applies throughout Northern Ireland and England and Wales, however the police in Scotland largely revert to common law powers for arrests and statutory legislation for powers of detention.

Police record crime in accordance with the National Crime Recording Standard (due to sufficiency of evidence rules this is a different policy in Scotland). There has recently been some upheaval in the police recording of crime data, with the statistics having been found to not meet the standard required for designation as National Statistics.

The primary sources for crime and justice statistics are: in England and Wales, the Office for National Statistics (ONS), the Home Office and the Ministry of Justice; in Scotland, the Scottish Government; in Northern Ireland, the Police Service of Northern Ireland (PSNI) and the Department of Justice.

Recorded Crime

The ONS Crime Statistics bulletin, combining police recorded crime data with results from the Crime Survey England and Wales (CSEW), is the primary source of crime statistics for England and Wales. Detection rates in England and Wales, including outcomes data, is published by the Home Office who also publish historical crime data since 1898.

In Scotland, police recorded crime data is released annually, and includes detection rates. This publication is complemented by the Scottish Crime Survey, with the two expected to be combined in the future.

Likewise, in Northern Ireland, police recorded crime data is published by the PSNI, with the separate Northern Ireland Crime Survey published by the Department of Justice.

  (Department of Justice; Northern Ireland; annual publications; since 1994/95)
Youth Crime
The Ministry of Justice, in conjunction with the Youth Justice Board for England and Wales, publish statistics regarding young people (aged 10-17) in the Youth Justice System in England and Wales. This includes offences and associated disposal, court statistics and custody data. Scotland and Northern Ireland do not separated out youth justice data from the main series.

- MOJ, Youth Justice Statistics, England and Wales
  (MOJ; by region and local authority; annual with additional ad hoc releases; from 2008)

Drug Crime
Statistics on drug seizures by territorial police forces, the British Transport Police and the UK Border Force are provided by the Home Office in England and Wales, the Scottish Government and the PSNI. Other data related to drug offences and alcohol related crime is to be found within the main publications.

- Seizures of Drugs in England and Wales
  (Home Office; England and Wales; by police force; annual publications; since 2000)

- Drug Seizures by Scottish Police Forces

  (PSNI; Northern Ireland; by district and region; annual publications; since 2002/03)

Policing

Police Workforce
Police workforce statistics are published for each jurisdiction separately: the Home Office covering the 43 territorial forces in England and Wales, as well as the British Transport Police; the Scottish Government the numbers for Police Scotland; and PSNI publishing their officer numbers. Workforce also includes police staff and Special Constables, and Police Community Support Officers in England and Wales. HM Inspectorate of Constabulary have also collated data on police officer numbers in England and Wales, including frontline officer numbers, as a response to budget cuts since 2010 under their ‘Valuing the Police’ inspection programme.

- Police Workforce England and Wales Statistics
  (Home Office; by police force; England and Wales; from 1998)

- Police Strength, Scotland
  (Scottish Government; Scotland; quarterly; from 2006)

- Strength of Police Service Statistics
  (PSNI; Northern Ireland; updated annually)

- HMIC Valuing the Police Data
  (HMIC; by police force; England and Wales; annual; since 2010)
Police Powers & Procedures
The availability of statistics covering general policing duties varies according to jurisdiction. In both England and Wales, and Northern Ireland, statistics of procedures carried out under the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984, including detentions, arrests, stop and searches, breath tests and fixed penalty notices are published regularly. The Home Office also provides statistics on the police use of Taser and firearms for England and Wales, but these remain unavailable for Scotland and are not published for Northern Ireland where police officers remain routinely armed. Included in this section are statistics on the number of firearms and shotgun certificates issued, including visitors’ permits.

  (Northern Ireland; various publications by court and action; annual publications; since 2008)

International Comparisons

As highlighted at the beginning of this note, making comparisons in crime statistics between different legal jurisdictions should be approached with caution. This is even more the case when considering comparisons with different countries which can apply both differing legal traditions (common or civil law), or even different moral standards to what we might consider justice.

If an international comparison is to be made, the European Sourcebook of Crime and Criminal Justice Statistics is an invaluable source covering everything from policing statistics and crime rates, to conviction rates and victimisation surveys. Other useful sources listed below provide detailed statistics on prison populations and incarceration rates in different countries around the world.

- European Sourcebook of Crime and Criminal Justice Statistics
  (European Sourcebook; various European countries; latest 5th edition (2014), earliest covers from 1990)

The United Kingdom

The Ministry of Defence (MOD) is the main source of Official and National statistics on defence related topics in the UK. All publications and datasets since May 2010 can be found on the department’s.gov.uk web-pages.

Older publications and statistical releases are available via the UK Government Web Archive.

Topics covered by MOD statistics include:

- Finance
- Personnel
- Health (including casualties)
- Equipment
- Search and Rescue activities

The MOD also publishes an annual compendium, UK Defence Statistics (UKDS). This provide a good overview of all the statistical releases in the year of publication as well as more general trends. UKDS has been in continuous publication since 1992 when it replaced Statement on the defence estimates.

NATO

NATO multimedia publishes various online reports and summaries covering topics such as troop contributions, policy and international spending. Further data on Defence Expenditure as a proportion of GDP for member countries is also available (also see the World Bank’s online search engine for further analysis).
International defence statistics
There are three primary sources for international defence statistics:

- The Military Balance
  An annual publication from the Institute of Strategic Studies which provides assessment of military capabilities and defence spending of over 170 countries. Available in hard copy from the Library, or online through the Commons Library e-Journals.

- The SIPRI Yearbook
  Published by the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute, this is a collection of data and analysis on security and conflicts across the globe. Includes information on military spending, arms production and nuclear forces. Available in hard copy from the Library.

- Jane’s Defence & Security Intelligence & Analysis
  Provides detailed news and analysis of current topics on worldwide defence issues. It can be accessed online through the House of Commons Library Online Resources.
As a devolved matter education statistics on school funding, teachers, pupil numbers and performance are available for each constituent country of the UK. A range of detailed international surveys and comparisons are available, together with data on higher and further education in the UK.

General

The Department for Education publishes a range of statistical series for education in England, including data on school and pupil numbers, primary, secondary and post-16 attainment and the destination of key stage 4 & 5 pupils. Data is available within each series for a range of geographies.

- School and pupil numbers
  (Department of Education; by local authority & region; annual release)
- Performance tables on attainment of primary, secondary and post-16 pupils
  (Department of Education; England)
- 16 to 19 attainment
  (Department of Education; England)
- Destination of key stage 4 & 5 pupils
  (Department for Education; by school, constituency and local authority; England)
Education finance
School/service level expenditure data is available per local authority in England via the Department of Education’s local authority school expenditure tables. Grants received by local authorities from central government are detailed within Dedicated Schools Grant releases; planned expenditure benchmarks offer projections for local authority funding. Similar releases are available for Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland.

International data: how does the UK compare?
The OECD’s annual Education at a Glance publication collates data on the education structure, finance and performance from governments around the world. UNESCO’s Institute for Statistics similarly provides data on education in over 200 countries. The Programme for International Student Assessment (PISA) surveys the educational performance of resources available to 15 years olds in 65 economies. The TIMSS (Trends in International Mathematics and Science study) has measured trends in mathematics and science for the past twenty years. The PIRLS (Progress in International Reading Literacy Study) has measured reading comprehension for the past 15.

Higher education

UCAS provide an array of higher education statistics on applications, acceptances, acceptances according to applicant characteristics and a number of other issues. The UCAS statistical enquiry tool allows first hand analysis of historic data (note this data is not up-to-date). The UK wide Higher Education Statistics Agency provides further analysis of higher education enrolments, courses studied and the characteristics of students. HESA performance indicators provide comparative indicators on efforts to widen participation in education and retain students and graduates’ employment prospects. Official statistics on student loans are available from the Student Loans Company.

Electoral studies and surveys
The British Election Study is one of the world’s longest running election studies, analysing the political attitudes and voting behaviours of voters since 1964. The British Social Attitudes Survey has surveyed around 3,000 people annually since 1984 to track changes in a range of social, political and moral attitudes. Questions on the survey are rotated year on year, meaning consecutive surveys cover different topics.

Past UK elections and governments
In print, Rallings’s and Thrasher’s British Electoral Facts provides a comprehensive guide to statistics on general elections, referendums, political parties, electoral administration and public opinion 1832 to 2012. Butler’s and Butler’s British Political Facts is similarly thorough, providing long running data and information series on ministries and ministers, elections, parties, parliament, social conditions, the economy, the media and international affairs from 1900 to the present day.

Online, official results for recent elections are published by the Electoral Commission. UKPOL Magazine and UK Political Info collate election results – often at a constituency level – for a range of UK elections. Data is available on Local Authority by-elections since 1996 from the Association of Liberal Democrat Councillor’s Local Authority Byelection Results site.

Energy consumption, pricing and poverty

The annual publication Energy Consumption in the United Kingdom provides data on total UK energy consumption, together with specific chapters for consumption by the transport, domestic, industrial and services sectors. The Department for Energy and Climate Change provides further consumption data by local authority. The Department also publishes quarterly energy price statistics with comparisons to fuel prices elsewhere in the EU and for other G7 countries. Statistics on fuel poverty are available for the UK and by local authority; series on energy efficiency (inc. data on domestic efficiency and smart meters) are published for various geographies, while domestic energy fact files are available for Great Britain.

Energy sector
The DUKES (Digest of UK energy statistics) series contains annual data on coal, petroleum, gas, electricity, renewables and other power sources together with extensive analysis of power production past and present; the Department of Energy & Climate Change’s energy sector statistics draw upon these publications to produce a series of accessible data tables. UK energy sector statistics consolidates further data available to the Department in one annual digest. The National Grid’s data pages provide a real time data on system operations together with forecasts for demand on the grid and associated costs.

Renewable and nuclear energy
Energy Trends section 6 consolidates a number of statistical series in one quarterly bulletin. Regional data tables on the generation, instillation capacity, site no. and economic viability of renewable energy is available from the Department of Energy & Climate Change. Chapter 6 of DUKES provides information on specifically the sources of renewable energy. Renewable UK is a not for profit organisation publishing a range of reports and information packs. On nuclear power, the Department publishes lists of past and present nuclear reactors and the World Nuclear Association provides data on Uranium production, nuclear generation by country and other reactor statistics.

International data
A range of data series on energy tax rates, the energy intensity of an economy, greenhouse gas emissions, the market share of a country’s largest electricity generator and renewable energy are available from the Eurostat Energy Statistics tool, together with series on the quantities and prices associated with energy production. The EU’s Market Observatory for Energy publishes weekly data on consumer prices and net prices for petroleum products. A monthly overview of the oil market is available from the International Energy Agency. Data on oil, natural gas and coal production and consumption is available from the US Energy Information Administration online search tool. BP’s annual Review of World Energy provides a history of energy production since 1952.

Department of Energy, Food and Rural Affairs statistics cover a range of environmental series including air quality and emissions, biodiversity and water quality. The ONS’s UK Environmental Accounts focus on the environmental impact of UK economic activities, including natural asset extraction, energy consumption and greenhouse gas emissions. Further statistics are available per nation of the UK and internationally.

Climate change and greenhouse gas emissions

Long running UK climate information is available from the Met Office (from 1659, in the case of temperatures for central England). The United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change publishes reports on world greenhouse gas emissions. Further data on greenhouse gasses, together with other emissions including aerosols, non-methane hydrocarbons, radiation and ozone, are available from the US Department of Commerce’s Global Monitoring Division.

Waiting lists

Waiting list data is available for CCGs, Area Teams and nationally for England, Scotland and Wales; data is gathered by Health and Social Care Trusts in Northern Ireland. Waiting lists data is available for multiple events including A&E visits, cancer and cardiac surgeries.

Hospital activity

Hospital admissions
Hospital episode statistics are available for each constituent country of the UK at CCG (or equivalent), Area Team and national level. Inpatients - those people admitted to an available staffed hospital bed to remain overnight, including those discharged early - and day cases - where a person makes a planned admission to an available staffed bed for clinical care and is discharged on the same day as planned – are the primary focus of episode statistics.

Health screening: screening programmes, breast cancer & cervical cancer
A national population-based breast screening programme operates in the UK, offering screening to all women aged 50-70 (50-64 until 2003/04) once every three years. Cervical screenings are similarly available once every three years to all women aged 25-64 in England and Wales and all women aged 20-60 in Scotland. Data is available per constituent country of the UK.

House prices
Multiple sources on house prices exist due to the range of ways in which the housing market may be modelled. The ONS, Lloyds and Nationwide all provide long-running indices that allow analysis of market trends over time. Halifax and Nationwide publish adjusted house price series for local areas that account for the changing range of property types available on the market. The ONS further provides a long running series of house prices for first time buyers. DCLG provides affordability estimates per region, comparing earnings to prices.

UK migration

The Office for National Statistics releases provide comprehensive and up-to-date estimates of international migration to and from the UK, including regional breakdowns. For the most recent statistics see the ONS’s Migration Statistics Quarterly Reports; for a more comprehensive analysis, see the Long-Term International Migration Estimates. The principal source for statistics on managed migration is the Home Office, which publishes quarterly statistical summaries, including asylum data. The ‘Migrant Journey’ is a Home Office research series that examines the outcomes for migrants entering the UK immigration system and the most common pathways through the system that result in settlement.

International migration statistics

EuroStat publishes data on immigration, emigration and the acquisition of citizenship for European Union countries together with a range of other statistics. The UN’s Department of Economics and Social Affairs provides global estimates of migration rates for many countries. For asylum trends and refugees, see publications provided by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR). All the publications listed below combine data from a variety of country and regional sources, meaning that figures may differ from national sources if they have been harmonised, or may suffer from comparability issues. National sources are generally preferable for examining trends in individual countries, while international sources are better for comparing countries.

UK Annual Mid-Year Population Estimates

Annual mid-year population estimates provide the most recent estimates of population. The most accurate population estimates are those produced from the decennial Census. In the years between Censuses the population estimates are based on the previous year’s estimates, which are updated to reflect population change in the most recent year. Historic mid-year population estimates are typically revised after each Census to correct for errors in estimating population change in each year. Mid-year population estimates are produced using the cohort component method, which takes the resident population from a previous year, adjusts it for the change in age, deducts the individuals deceased in the year, adds the individuals who have been born, and adds the effect of net migration.

- Population estimates by government office regions, local authority and health areas (Office for National Statistics; UK; annually; 1982 onwards)
- Population estimates revised in the light of the 2011 Census (Office for National Statistics; UK; annually; 1981-2011)

Census Data

Censuses in the UK have generally been held every 10 years since 1801, with some exceptions. The Census is the most comprehensive source of demographic and social statistics in the UK. Census data for England and Wales is compiled by the Office for National Statistics; while in Scotland the Census is run by the National Records of Scotland, and in Northern Ireland it is run by the Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency.
Some questions asked on the Census questionnaire differ in different parts of the UK, which means the data is not always comparable. Examples include questions on religion, ethnicity and passports held.

These datasets provide the most comprehensive portrayal of population on the specified census day. In certain cases it may not be the best data for comparison across UK countries (see above).

UK Population Projections

The Office for National Statistics produces population projections every two years, based on the mid-year population estimates for a given year and a set of assumptions about fertility, mortality and net migration in future years. The projections include a principal projection, based on current trends, and a set of variant projections, which reflect higher and lower assumed levels of fertility, mortality and migration. They include separate projections for individual countries of the UK and for the UK as a whole. Short-term population projections are produced for each of the 25 years from the baseline year, while long-term projections are produced at five year intervals for the next 100 years.

- Mid 2012 – Mid 2037 projections
  (Office for National Statistics; UK; annually; 2006 onwards)

There are several tools available on the website for easier analysis and extraction of this data relating to future population; these are:

The interactive table download tool
The interactive population pyramids

- Long term UK population projections (up to 2112)
  (Office for National Statistics; UK; annually; 2007 onwards)
International Population Estimates and Projections

International population projections by country are available from several organisations, with varying levels of geographic coverage. Each set of population projections relies on different sources and assumptions, so estimates and projections for any given country will vary between datasets. Comparisons should therefore be made within the same dataset where possible.

Religion

There are only a handful of routine sources of statistics on religion. The key source is the Census, although Census data on religious affiliation is not strictly comparable between UK countries due differences in the wording of the question asked and the response categories offered in different parts of the UK.

Recent estimates of the population by religious affiliation that are comparable across Great Britain (but not the UK) can be produced from the quarterly Labour Force Survey (LFS) down to regional level. The British Social Attitude Survey (BSA) publishes data which allows for the longest time-series analysis between UK countries. The BSA has asked people in Great Britain questions about religious affiliation since 1983, although the data is only available at the national level.

If you wish to receive data from either the LFS or BSA please contact the House of Commons Library.

  (Scotland’s Census 2011; Scotland; decennially; 2011)
The Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) and HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) are the primary sources for statistics on social security benefits in Great Britain. Statistics on private and occupational pensions are more fragmented than those for state benefits, coming from a range of official surveys, industry and other sources.

Social security benefits and tax credits

General sources

The DWP’s statistical summaries contain the key data on DWP-administered benefits in Great Britain (including the State Pension). The Department for Social Development publishes benefit data for Northern Ireland. HMRC statistics cover Child and Working Tax Credits and Child Benefit for the UK as a whole.

  (Department for Social Development; Northern Ireland)

Number of claimants (caseload) and amounts awarded

The DWP tabulation tool allows users to analyse benefit caseloads in Great Britain by age, gender, family status, claim type, amount received, duration of claim and a range of geographies. The ONS Nomis website provides the monthly Jobseeker’s Allowance claimant count in the UK, as well as a large proportion of the DWP caseload data.

The DWP’s Stat-xplore website provides detailed monthly data on Housing Benefit, Personal Independence Payment, benefit sanctions and the numbers affected by the household benefit cap.

For a broader perspective on the family incomes, see the annual Family Resources Survey.

Expenditure
The DWP’s Benefit Expenditure and Caseload Tables (updated twice a year) are the main source of figures on DWP benefit expenditure in Great Britain. They provide detailed data for Great Britain as a whole, plus breakdowns by region, local authority and constituency. HMRC publishes total annual and monthly expenditure on tax credits and Child Benefit in the UK alongside its headline figures on tax receipts.

The Office for Budget Responsibility (OBR) publishes forecasts of total welfare expenditure in the UK. Medium-term forecasts are given in the OBR’s Economic and Fiscal Outlook, while their Fiscal Sustainability Report provides longer-term projections.

Pensioner incomes and non-state pensions

The ONS compendium Pension Trends brings together data on non-state (occupational and personal) pension provision, contributions, pension providers and fund investments. Pension Trends draws upon a range of specific surveys including the Occupational Pension Schemes Survey. The Pensioners’ Income Series estimates the levels, sources and distribution of pensioners’ incomes.

The independent Pensions Policy Institute provides analysis and summary data on the pension system. The Association of British Insurers publishes key data on the annuity market.
