EU (Withdrawal Agreement) Bill

PHOTO REDACTED DUE TO THIRD PARTY RIGHTS OR OTHER LEGAL ISSUES

OVERVIEW

The UK has agreed a new Brexit deal with the EU. The EU (Withdrawal Agreement) Bill will implement this new deal in UK law, and deliver Brexit by 31st October 2019.

The Bill will: take back control of our laws by reaffirming the sovereignty of Parliament; end vast annual payments to Brussels; protect the Union by ensuring we leave as one United Kingdom; protect the rights of EU, EEA EFTA and Swiss citizens living in the UK; and secure an implementation period to give businesses certainty.

The other separation issues are contained in Part Three of the Withdrawal Agreement. They set out what will happen to ongoing processes that operate under EU law, such as cases that are being considered by the European Court of Justice, at the end of the implementation period. They provide a smooth transition for individuals and businesses and need to be implemented in UK law through the EU (Withdrawal Agreement) Bill.

Our future economic and security relationship with the EU could include arrangements that supersede many of these Withdrawal Agreement provisions. These may then require new arrangements to be agreed and put in place to ensure a smooth transition from the implementation period to the future relationship.

The other separation issues all relate to areas currently governed by EU law. They cover:

- Goods placed on the market
- Ongoing customs procedures
- Ongoing VAT and Excise Duty matters
- Intellectual Property (including Geographical Indications)
- Ongoing police and judicial co-operation in criminal matters
- Ongoing judicial co-operation in civil and commercial matters
- Data and information processed or obtained before the end of the implementation period or on the basis of the Withdrawal Agreement
- Ongoing public procurement and similar procedures
- Euratom-related issues
- Union judicial and administrative procedures
- Administrative co-operation procedures between Member States and the UK
- Privileges and immunities
- Other issues relating to the functioning of the institutions, bodies, offices and agencies of the EU

Where a process in one of these areas has started, but is still ongoing at the end of the implementation period, the Withdrawal Agreement sets out the specific arrangements that should apply.

In many of these 13 areas, this means that EU law will continue to apply directly for processes that began before the end of the implementation period to allow them to finally conclude. These arrangements mean that there is consistency and greater certainty for individuals and businesses as we leave the EU.

In addition to this, there may need to be some technical changes to the statute book. These matters will be dealt with by secondary legislation. The Bill allows the Government to make relevant changes to the statute book when necessary. These arrangements mean that there is consistency and certainty for individuals and businesses as we leave the EU. For example, it will be clear which rules apply to a good that is circulating on the market between the UK and EU at the end of the implementation period, and how a court case that has begun before the European Court of Justice can conclude.

Where relevant, arrangements on the other separation issues have also been agreed with the EEA EFTA states as part of the EEA EFTA Separation Agreement.

DEVOLUTION

Some parts of the other separation issues are in areas within the devolved competence of Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland. Devolved administrations will have the ability to make changes to their own legislation where required.
