The criteria

Introduction

GCSE subject criteria set out the knowledge, understanding, skills and assessment objectives common to all GCSE specifications in a given subject.

They provide the framework within which the awarding organisation creates the detail of the specification.

Aims and learning outcomes

1. GCSE specifications in Sociology should encourage learners to be inspired, moved and changed by following a broad, coherent, satisfying and worthwhile course of study and to reflect on their own experience of the social world to enhance their ability to play informed roles within different social contexts. They should prepare learners to make informed decisions about further learning opportunities and career choices.
2. GCSE specifications in Sociology must enable learners to:
 - recognise that their sociological knowledge, understanding and skills help them to develop an understanding of the interrelationships between individuals, groups, institutions and societies;
 - analyse critically the nature and sources of information and to base reasoned judgements and arguments on evidence;
 - organise and communicate their knowledge and understanding in different and creative ways, and reach substantiated judgements.

Subject content

3. The content of GCSE specifications in Sociology must reflect the learning outcomes.
4. GCSE specifications in Sociology must require learners to demonstrate knowledge and understanding of:
 - social structures and social differentiation in contemporary society;
 - social processes, including socialisation, culture and identity, social control, social interaction and social change;
 - social issues, including the causes and consequences of inequality, and the sources, distribution and exercise of power and authority;

- the relationships between individuals, groups, institutions and societies, and the range of influences that act upon each of them.
5. GCSE specifications in Sociology must require learners to develop the ability to:
- acquire information for different purposes using a range of sources and methods;
 - interpret and evaluate information presented in different forms;
 - use information to examine issues and construct and evaluate arguments and conclusions.
