Building and implementing an effective local workforce strategy

Module 12: reviewing the impact of the workforce strategy
August 2010

Resource

Preface

Building and implementing an effective local workforce strategy is a valuable activity a local area can embark on to enable the delivery of its ambitions for children's services. Put simply, it is not "organisations", but the people within them, that make change happen – and workforce strategy is about people.

A workforce strategy summarises how each of the organisations working with children and young people intend to work together to make certain that everyone is excellent in their practice, committed to partnership and collaborative working, respected and valued as a professional and ambitious for every child and young person.

This local workforce strategy guide has been developed jointly by the National College for Leadership of Schools and Children's Services (National College), the Children's Workforce Development Council (CWDC) and the Training and Development Agency for Schools (TDA), working collaboratively to improve the support and service we can offer the children's workforce.

This is a practical, "how to" guide designed to provide support and a framework of guiding principles from the start to the end of the process of creating and implementing a local workforce strategy, no matter where the local area is on that journey. The guide has been written for the use of any individual or group whose professional role involves working towards helping children achieve more and securing the best possible results for children and families.¹

¹ As these materials have been published separately on the CWDC and National College websites there may be minor discrepancies in language between the two versions, although content remains largely consistent.

Introduction and overview

A local children and young people's² workforce strategy (workforce strategy) is a key document that draws together all that local organisations aim to do to attract, retain, support and develop everyone working with children and young people in their local area.

Building and implementing an effective local workforce strategy is a valuable activity a local area can embark on to enable the delivery of its ambitions for children and young people.

This practical, how to guide is designed to provide support at each stage of creating and implementing a workforce strategy, whether that is:

- at the start: trying to understand what a workforce strategy is and its local, regional and national context
- already underway: either reviewing or refining a workforce strategy
- complete: and ready to be promoted and implemented; or
- being implemented: requiring sustained focus and momentum, as well as regular review to ensure it is having the desired impact

There is a slide deck 'building and implementing an effective local workforce strategy' to accompany this how to guide, all slide references refer to this document.

Workforce strategy and other human resources (HR) activities

A workforce strategy, also sometimes known as "HR strategy" or "people strategy", provides the direction and principles which managers and practitioners need to guide decision making and in order to create their own, more detailed, people related plans.

In every agency and service area, and often at department level within them, one would hope to see a number of detailed plans and strategies being regularly developed and reviewed, such as:

- workforce plans³
- recruitment, reward and retention plans
- training and development plans (guided by skills and qualifications audits)
- continuous professional development plans
- leadership development plans
- succession plans
- their own workforce or HR strategies

The local workforce strategy does not seek to replace any of these, rather it seeks to be informed by them, respond to them and provide direction to them in an ongoing cycle (slide 4).

² Throughout this document children & young people should be read to include their families & carers where appropriate

³ Workforce planning is sometimes confused with workforce strategy. Workforce planning is focused on estimating an organisation's future staffing requirements and calculating the numbers, nature and sources of potential full time and temporary staff who might meet that demand.

Background to the guide

'Building and implementing an effective local workforce strategy' has been developed jointly by the National College, the CWDC and the TDA. The immediate focus of activity is support to local areas with workforce strategy and planning to ensure everyone working with children and young people is:

- ambitious for every child and young person
- excellent in their practice
- committed to partnership and integrated working
- respected and valued as a professional

Priorities

- Understanding the real time workforce issues facing local areas.
- Collaborating to achieve local solutions that encourage sustainable change.
- Working together to ensure best use of resources, shared efficiency and increased effectiveness.

Roles of development partners

The National College works to develop and inspire great leadership across children's centres, schools and children's services so that leaders and their teams can make a real and positive difference to the lives of children and young people. Our four key goals are:

- inspiring new leaders
- great leadership development
- inspiring successful leadership
- shaping future leadership

CWDC specialises in the development of the children and young people's workforce. Our immediate focus is on early years, social work, young people's workforce, social care and the integration of leadership and management of children's services in local authorities.

TDA focuses on developing the skills of the children's workforce in schools and ensures that schools can recruit good quality, well trained people who will continue to develop and improve their skills to support children's learning and development. We work to secure the supply and quality of the teaching workforce and promote teaching as a career. We also support the modernisation of the children's workforce in schools by helping schools to access the resources they need to remodel their workforce, deploy their staff effectively and introduce extended services.

Overriding principles

By following this guide, the organisations involved can be certain that their efforts will result in a local workforce strategy that is not only well thought-out and achievable, but will also follow and promote a set of fundamental overriding principles:

- Involving children and young people, their families and carers in the decisions that affect them.
- Engaging staff from all levels in shaping the children’s workforce of the future.
- Including all workforce groups (or sectors) working with children and young people in the process.
- Promoting integrated working and reducing barriers and obstacles to this approach wherever and whenever possible.
- Being focused, both in terms of how resources are deployed and on making a real, tangible difference in the lives of children and young people.
- Driving more efficient operations of children’s services to achieve the best possible value for money from the continued investment.
- Ensuring a diverse children’s workforce that is representative of the community it serves, and in which everybody is treated fairly and offered equal opportunities.
- Striving to create a fully engaged, motivated and enthusiastic children’s workforce, made up of high performing teams.
- Investing in the ongoing development of those working with children and young people to ensure that they have the right levels of qualification and experience, skills and knowledge.
- Inspiring the children’s workforce through visionary, expert leadership and creating a succession pipeline of capable managers and leaders for the future.
- Collecting, analysing and acting on data intelligently in order to drive performance and focus resources.

Who is the guide designed for?

This guide could be useful to a number of audience groups, such as:

- the person or group of people directly responsible for drafting and implementing the workforce strategy – the developers of the local workforce strategy and actions
- the main sponsor of the local workforce strategy activity
- other active senior stakeholders, senior managers and leaders in the organisations involved who act as internal advocates and sponsors within their relevant organisations
- actively involved human resources and training practitioners, policy and commissioning leads, or people involved in evidence gathering or implementation projects

Developers

The guide has been written primarily for local workforce strategy developers. If you are the developer of your local workforce strategy, you will find in each module an explanation of what it is about and why it is important, followed by a range of practical support materials such as individual or group exercises, case studies and useful links.

Sponsors

If you are a sponsor of the local workforce strategy activity you will find a checklist at the end of each section giving suggestions of how you, in your role, can best support and promote the activity in that module. You will find that the role of sponsor is not a passive one, there are many doors that require opening, obstacles to remove and, importantly, tough questions to be asked along the way.

Active stakeholders

The guide has been written in modules which allows you to dip in to the modules relating to the activity areas you have been asked to contribute to or participate in.

Module 12: reviewing the impact of the workforce strategy

By the end of this module, you will have:

- established how and when the impact of the workforce strategy will be reviewed, and how children and young people, and staff, will be included in the process.

The impact of the workforce strategy is reviewed a number of ways:

- through consultation with children, young people and their families to ask first hand if they have noticed differences and what further changes they want to see
- through consultation with staff at all levels, and managers, working in the children's workforce
- checking the impact actions are having against the improvement and delivery objectives set for children's services as established earlier in the strategy process (Exercise 6.3)
- from the findings in case reviews and internal audits
- through feedback and observations in external audits and inspections

Existing consultation programmes by organisations in the local area may afford opportunities to combine and link up consultations on workforce strategy.

Recommended activities

Exercise 12.1: review the impact of the workforce strategy

If Exercise 6.3 was conducted, this is a useful starting point to review the impact the workforce strategy is having. It would be worthwhile to go through that linking exercise as a starting point.

Template 13, in Appendix 6, provides a very simple approach to record a comparison of the desired impact on children's services objectives against the impact achieved to date. This can be done as a group exercise, which is useful for discussing what remedial action or changes to the strategy and action plan might need to be adopted.

Another useful tool is the TDA impact evaluation model. This can be used in the earlier design stages to ensure the right actions are put in place, or to assess impact along the way.

Checklist for sponsors

Sponsors can support and enable the activities in this module by:

- ensuring that the impact of the workforce strategy is regularly reviewed in a systemised way, and includes obtaining first hand feedback and input from children and young people as well as staff and managers from across the workforce

Exercise 6.1: conducting a gap analysis, where are we now?

The rating scale and criteria should be developed by the group conducting this exercise to ensure common understanding of what they are and mean. A suggested approach is to use High, Medium and Low for Importance and for current status a scale such as: Not yet begun, struggling, average or midpoint, making progress and excelling.
