

Conducting inspections of independent schools

Section 162A independent school inspection guidance

This guidance sets out the timelines, procedures and tariffs for conducting inspections of non-association independent schools. It indicates the main activities that need to be undertaken from the time the school is notified that it is to be inspected until the publication of the report. Schools can use the guidance to see how inspections will be conducted and may find it helpful when carrying out their self-evaluation.

Introduction

1. Since the start of the second cycle of inspection in April 2008 two different models of inspection for independent schools have been used. These are: the standard model and the light-touch model of section 162A inspection.
2. A standard inspection involves one planning day and usually two days on site. If the school makes provision for children in the Early Years Foundation Stage, the tariff is increased by an additional inspector day, which will usually be on day 1 of the inspection. There is some flexibility in how lead inspectors may use the planning day allocated to them. This enables the lead inspector to work at the school for part of the planning day, reviewing documentation and discussing the school's self-evaluation information with the headteacher. For boarding schools which have an integrated inspection of social care and education, this model enables inspectors to meet and plan together and the social care inspector to begin their inspection. Schools that have failed to meet a significant number of The Education (Independent School Standards) (England) Regulations 2010 on the previous inspection will receive an inspection under this standard inspection model.¹
3. A light-touch inspection involves one planning day and one day on site. This will generally involve only one inspector, although there may be additional inspectors, for example if the school has Early Years Foundation Stage provision. Again, there is some flexibility in how inspectors may use the planning day allocated to them. The inspector may work at the school for part of the planning day reviewing documentation and discussing the school's self-evaluation information with the headteacher. Schools will be eligible for a light-touch inspection if, on the previous inspection, they have met at least 90% of the regulations. These must include the vast majority of those concerning the quality of education, the requirement to promote awareness of different cultures (part 2, paragraph 5(e)) and all that relate to the arrangements for safeguarding and welfare (all the standards in part 3; part 4, paragraphs 19(2)(a), 21(3)(a)(i), 21(5)(a)(i), 21(6)(a)(i) and 22(3)(b); and part 5, paragraph 23(e)). Note that due to the vulnerability of the pupils, boarding schools and those which cater wholly or mainly for pupils with special educational needs (including children's homes which provide education) will not receive a light-touch inspection and will always have a standard two-day inspection.
4. All newly registered schools are inspected in the first 12 months after the date of registration. The inspection will be the standard model. On integrated inspections of social care and education, inspectors are strongly advised to spend at least part of the planning day together on site.
5. Additional one-day inspections will be carried out which relate to initial registration of new schools, material change, emergency inspections and monitoring schools' progress. Separate guidance is given on conducting these inspections in Conducting additional inspections of independent schools. This along with the inspection forms to be used are available in the Independent, boarding and residential special schools inspection handbook – ‘the inspection handbook’. The monitoring inspections will result in a published report.

The inspection process

6. The schedule of schools for inspection is drawn up by Ofsted in consultation with the Department for Education (DfE). All monitoring or registration inspections also occur at the request of the DfE and are scheduled by Ofsted’s administrators in consultation with the inspection service providers.
7. The type and duration of the inspection and size and composition of the team will have been determined by taking account of the risk, date and outcome of the previous inspection, size of school, number of class groups, and whether there are under-fives, pupils with special educational needs or boarding pupils. The numbers of pupils on roll, their age range, and whether the school is boarding or residential and/or a newly registered school will also be taken into consideration by Ofsted (please refer to annex B for the inspection tariff for standard and light-touch inspections).
8. Where there are under-five-year-olds on roll, a trained inspector with expertise in the Early Years Foundation Stage will be assigned as part of the team, so that both the welfare and learning and development requirements of the Early Years Foundation Stage may be part of an integrated inspection. Where the school also contains registered provision for children aged under three (see further guidance in Inspecting the Early Years Foundation Stage in the inspection handbook) there must be an experienced inspector assigned to the team who has received training in inspecting children in this age group.²
9. A social care inspector is assigned to the inspection of a school with boarding or residential provision, so that the total school provision may be inspected as an integrated event. Please refer to Inspecting residential provision in boarding and residential special schools in the inspection handbook.
10. All aspects of the administration will be carried out by the inspection service providers.
11. Independent schools are given two clear days’ notice of their inspection date. Independent boarding schools are given two days’ notice of their integrated education and welfare inspection. The welfare inspection begins on the afternoon of the lead inspector’s planning day. The two clear days’ notice is given from this point.

² Inspecting the Early Years Foundation Stage (090056), Ofsted, 2011; www.ofsted.gov.uk/publications/090056 This is also available in the ‘Guidance for inspectors’ section of the inspection handbook.

12. Schools are invited to complete an electronic Self-evaluation and information form (SIEF) which is available online for the school to complete and submit to Ofsted. The school is asked to submit the completed SIEF within 24 hours of notification. If the school has not completed a SIEF, the lead inspector will need to ask the school to provide the relevant information in some other format at the start of the inspection. Her Majesty's Inspectors (HMI), social care inspectors and additional inspectors can access a school's last submitted SIEF on Ofsted's online forms website (using their username and password for this secure site), however the inspection service provider will also ensure it is added to their inspection portal. Instructions for social care inspectors on accessing SIEFs from Ofsted's online forms website is available in the inspection handbook.³
13. In children's homes that offer education, providers will complete the first part of the SIEF, which covers the education regulations and will also indicate compliance with national minimum standards for children's homes in section F. Ofsted will ask providers for separate information regarding welfare provision in children's homes.
14. The inspection service provider will notify the school of its inspection by telephone, giving the school two clear days' notice (please refer to annex A for a timeline of the inspection process). A formal notification of inspection letter will be sent the same day. It will confirm the team details, dates and documents needed, and will have inspection questionnaires for placing authorities, pupils, and parents and carers attached.
15. A copy of the inspection notification letter will go to the lead inspector and, on integrated inspections, also to the social care inspector together with a letter to the lead inspector and team inspector confirming team and school details. If the inspection service provider experiences difficulty in contacting the school by telephone they will still send the letter to the school by email on the due day and a hard copy by recorded delivery. In these circumstances the inspection service provider will telephone the lead inspector and let them know about the difficulties experienced. The inspection service provider will continue trying to contact the school by telephone the following day and will keep the lead inspector informed by telephone and email. The lead inspector will subsequently liaise with the social care inspector in the case of integrated inspections of boarding and residential special schools.
16. After the initial telephone call has been made by the inspection service provider, the lead inspector will make brief contact with the school by telephone and make arrangements for a longer discussion. The initial telephone call should take place within 24 hours of the announcement of the inspection, providing that the school is in a position to receive a telephone call. In cases where the school is using a telephone answering machine, the lead inspector should leave a message and state the time at which this message was left. Where the telephone remains unanswered, the lead inspector should persevere, keeping a note of the times at which they tried to make contact with the school. In the meantime the lead inspector, social care inspector and team inspector will access and review the school's last submitted SIEF.

17. The inspection service provider will provide the appropriate inspection forms in advance of the inspection. These will include a pre-populated Record of inspection evidence and judgements and a report template for section 162A inspections. These forms must include both Early Years Foundation Stage and boarding sections for completion where appropriate. The social care inspector will additionally need to access their copy of the Regulatory Support Application (RSA) toolkit through Ofsted. The inspection service provider will also provide previous reports to both the lead inspector and social care inspector, including the most recent report on inspecting outcomes for children and for social care. The previously completed Pre-registration regulatory check sheet will be provided for the first inspection of all newly registered schools.
18. There are two different report templates: Independent school standard inspection report template and Independent school light-touch inspection report template. Both templates include headings and judgement grade tables relating to the Early Years Foundation Stage and boarding provision and these should be deleted by the lead inspector where they are not relevant, if this has not already been done by the inspection service provider. Note that the first inspection of a new school should result in a report which is written in the Independent school standard inspection report template.
19. The following are suggested activities which the lead inspector and, where appropriate, the social care inspector, may undertake on the planning day.
 - Analyse the SIEF, taking account of any previous reports.
 - Contact the inspection service provider if there are any concerns about the complexity of the school's provision, for example if the provision is found to be on a split site.
 - Contact the headteacher to discuss the inspection process and to begin to plan the inspection.
 - Agree the meetings to be arranged, for example with staff and pupils.
 - Discuss the arrangements for observation of lessons and for feedback to teachers.
 - Agree the times for feedback to the headteacher and proprietor.
 - Obtain information regarding the times of the school day, any potential events taking place during the inspection and any staff issues which the team needs to be aware of.
 - Request class timetables to help with planning the inspection.
 - Draw the headteacher's attention to the documents that must be made available to inspectors during the inspection (as listed in the guidance for schools). It is important that the headteacher is alerted to the need to have the staff single central register available for checking on the planning day in school.

- Ask the headteacher to arrange to provide sample case studies of individual pupils, particularly those who have special educational needs, to show provision made for them and their progress since coming to the school.
- Agree how pupils' work will be made available for inspectors to look at.
- Agree the arrangements for speaking to parents or carers and pupils.
- Draw up the inspection team briefing identifying team responsibilities and issues to pursue and send this electronically to the team inspector and, where appropriate, the social care inspector, following discussion. This is optional for inspectors. Where there is only a lead inspector on an inspection, they may wish to use aspects of the template to support planning of the inspection.
- If the school is a charity inspectors can confirm its status on the Charity Commission website.⁴ This website contains details of all registered charities and inspectors can confirm its charitable aims, the names of the trustees and also view its financial history.

20. The use of the planning day is flexible. The lead inspector may find it helpful to spend some time in the school on pre-inspection activity. If this is the case, then they will need to agree this arrangement with the headteacher during the first telephone call prior to the planning day. It will also be necessary for the lead inspector to provide a hard copy of the inspection team briefing for the social care inspector and/or the team inspector when they arrive at the school on the first main inspection day (note that the use of this team briefing is optional on independent school inspections).⁵ It is also important to note that the planning day is for pre-inspection activity only and must not be used for observing lessons. However, it could include: looking at documentation; checking staff files and the single central register; looking at pupils' work and completed questionnaires; undertaking a tour of the school and having a discussion with the headteacher.

21. Special schools and registered children's homes where pupils have been placed by local authorities will be asked to ensure that placing authority questionnaires are sent to the local authorities. These questionnaires will be completed electronically and returned to the inspection service provider, who will provide them to the lead inspector and the social care inspector. Where schools have not sent questionnaires out to local authorities that place pupils at the school the lead inspector should discuss with the headteacher how their views have been sought in the past and how their current views can be ascertained. If these completed questionnaires have not been received by the lead inspector before they travel to the school, then they should contact the inspection service provider and ask to be kept informed by telephone about the content of any completed questionnaires that come in while the inspection is in progress. The purpose of these questionnaires is to give local authorities an opportunity to express their views about the quality of provision in the same way that parents and carers do. The lead inspector is expected to take account of the local authority's views during the inspection, but is not expected to use the information on the questionnaires for any other purpose.

22. The inspection questionnaire for parents and carers will be issued by the school, on Ofsted's behalf, on all new, standard and light-touch inspections. As instructed on the letter sent out to parents and carers, completed parent/carer questionnaires will have been sent in to the school in sealed envelopes and the school is requested to hand them unopened to the lead inspector. These will need to be opened and the responses evaluated early on in the inspection. A brief summary should be recorded on an evidence form or in the Record of inspection evidence and judgements. The parent/carer questionnaires also invite parents to write directly to the lead inspector if they prefer. Parents and carers may request to speak with the lead inspector during the inspection and are invited to contact the headteacher or the inspection service provider, who will make the necessary arrangements. In an integrated inspection, the social care inspector will enter a summary of responses to questionnaires on the Regulatory Support Application database.
23. Pupils' questionnaires will have been issued, on Ofsted's behalf, to pupils by the school. They will be completed by pupils and obtained by the lead inspector in the usual way. Normally these questionnaires will be completed by secondary pupils, although some schools may offer the opportunity for some of their older primary pupils to complete them. Inspectors should note that this questionnaire includes a boarding section which schools should have given to boarders for completion. Inspectors can expect that schools, knowing their pupils' needs and abilities very well, may have adapted the questionnaire to enable their pupils to express their views. Such adjustments may include providing individual support for pupils with learning difficulties or low literacy skills, or they may have translated the questionnaire into Braille or symbols.
24. In day schools primary pupils' views are usually sought through discussion between the inspector and the pupils. The pupils' questionnaire may be used by inspectors to provide prompts to support this discussion.
25. All questionnaires form part of the evidence base and should be forwarded to the inspection service provider at the end of the inspection.
26. During the inspection day(s) on site, the inspectors will need to observe the school's compliance with The Education (Independent School Standards) (England) Regulations 2010, Early Years Foundation Stage requirements and, for social care, the national minimum standards for boarding or residential special schools, as well as judging the quality of provision using the Criteria for making judgements (schools have these same criteria included in the SIEF guidance).^{6, 7} Early Years Foundation Stage judgements are made in accordance with the agreed criteria for that stage. Provision for boarders' welfare is judged according to the social care grade criteria and guidance. For light-touch inspections, note that not all section 162A regulations will be checked but all seven quality judgements will be made.

27. If a child protection concern arises during an inspection the lead inspector must follow Ofsted's safeguarding procedures. They should initially telephone the Compliance, Investigation and Enforcement team at Ofsted using the National Business Unit general helpline: 0300 123 1231. Depending on their advice, it may be necessary to insert a sentence into the draft report regarding an ongoing investigation (see Writing inspection reports in the inspection handbook).⁸
28. At all times during inspection, inspectors should carry their official identification card. Both the inspection service provider and Ofsted should be able to verify inspectors' legitimate presence in the school, if this is needed.
29. All evidence should be recorded on evidence forms, which should be forwarded to the inspection service provider at the end of the inspection and will be destroyed by them after three months. Alternatively the evidence may be recorded directly into the electronic Record of inspection evidence and judgements template. Where inspectors choose to use electronic evidence forms, a hard copy must be printed out and form part of the evidence base which is sent to the inspection service provider. Note that the evidence form draws attention to the need to indicate evidence on the Every Child Matters outcomes. In boarding schools the social care inspector records the detailed evidence for this aspect in the RSA toolkit (notebook). The lead inspector notes the main social care judgements in the appropriate sections of the Record of inspection evidence and judgements. Evidence forms can be used to help share evidence if required, for example from a discussion which may relate to both aspects of the inspection.
30. During the inspection, the lead inspector and team inspector will complete a combined Record of inspection evidence and judgements. In an integrated inspection, the social care inspector will contribute to this document, which will be recorded by the lead inspector. This will include the judgements about the quality of provision and will make clear any non-compliance with the independent schools regulations and the relevant national minimum standards in boarding or residential special schools, and will also include all evidence relating to the Early Years Foundation Stage. Inspectors should judge each school's compliance with regulations as it is found during the inspection.

31. In the case of the Early Years Foundation Stage, when the number of children on roll is very small, inspection is mainly of the provision and the progress of different groups of pupils over time. The report needs to make the circumstances clear, but it should normally still be possible to make the four Early Years Foundation Stage judgements. Further guidance on what to do in these circumstances is given in the Guidance on inspecting the Early Years Foundation Stage.
32. The evidence to support these judgements should be clearly shown. The Record of inspection evidence and judgements is completed electronically and is forwarded to the quality assurance reader with the inspection report. At the end of the inspection both the Record of inspection evidence and judgements and report are sent to the DfE by Ofsted, and the DfE retains them. In boarding schools the social care inspector retains their toolkit with detailed evidence on social care.
33. On the first inspection of a newly registered school, the Record of inspection evidence and judgements will be completed in the normal way in line with standard inspections. The regulations that were already met at the time of the registration inspection will already be on the regulatory check sheet, enabling the lead inspector to note and focus attention on those regulations which were not previously met and to judge the quality of provision now that the school has admitted pupils.
34. On light-touch inspections, an adapted Record of inspection evidence and judgements template is completed. This shows the limited number of regulations which must be checked on these inspections. The lead inspector is not required to focus on regulations which have been shaded in the Record of inspection evidence and judgements light-touch template but if they note something during the inspection which indicates non-compliance against any of these, they should put a tick in the 'No' column as usual and provide evidence of the reasons for this. The lead inspector should also check the previous report for any regulations which were not met at the last inspection and ensure that these are also checked for compliance. The lead inspector has discretion to focus on aspects of the regulations which are particularly relevant to the type of school being inspected: for example, it may be appropriate to look in more detail at records of physical restraint in a school which caters for pupils with emotional, social and behavioural difficulties.

Joint inspection in a children's home or residential school

35. Inspectors will visit the setting and inspect jointly as part of an integrated event. In The Education (Independent School Standards) (England) Regulations 2010, some regulations ask whether the school complies with specific standards in the national minimum standards for boarding or residential special schools. These are:

- the vetting of staff (part 4, paragraphs 19(2)(b), 19(2)(c), 19(2)(e) and 20(2)(e))
- the accommodation (part 5, paragraph 23(t))
- the procedures for handling complaints (part 7, paragraph 25(l)).

The social care inspector will provide the advice needed to make the judgement on whether the school is complying with the above regulations from their detailed assessment of compliance with the relevant national minimum standards.

Either inspector will make arrangements to talk to pupils about their school and home life and make a judgement about how well the residential and school elements of the provision work together to support each pupil's educational progress and personal development. Inspectors need to examine how much the provision supports or hinders pupils' learning, for example through:

- the provision of information and communication technology
- guidance for homework
- the provision of, or access to, books
- curriculum-related visits in out of school hours.

The social care inspector spends some time between the end of school and early evening, or early morning, in the boarding or residential provision talking with and observing pupils. Discussion with care workers provides information on how much they know about each pupil's educational provision and progress. Please refer to Inspecting residential provision in boarding and residential special schools in the inspection handbook for further information.

36. A standard inspection (usually two days on site) could be organised as follows, depending on what activities have already taken place on the planning day. The timings will need to be flexible to ensure that inspectors see a sufficient number of lessons to make a secure judgement on all the teaching regulations.

- | | |
|---------|---|
| 8.30am | Team meeting at school to confirm the inspection focus and discuss planning. |
| 9.00am | The team meets with the headteacher to discuss self-evaluation and any inspection issues to be aware of, for example staff who are absent, and to confirm the meetings that have been arranged. The lead inspector may also request a tour of the school if this has not already taken place on the planning day. |
| 10.30am | Observe lessons, review documents, meet staff, observe breaks and analyse questionnaires. |

- | | |
|---------|---|
| 12.30pm | Lunch (and observation of lunchtime arrangements for pupils) and possibly meet with a small group of pupils. |
| 1.30pm | Observe lessons, review documents and meet staff. Observe the end of the school day including the arrangements for transporting pupils home. |
| 4.30pm | Team meeting to discuss the emerging findings and plan the activities for Day 2. Feedback of interim findings to the headteacher and/or proprietor. |

In boarding schools: the social care inspector observes the evening arrangements and holds discussions with the pupils and with care staff.

Day 2

In boarding schools the social care inspector is likely to observe the early morning arrangements for pupils.

- | | |
|---------|--|
| 8.30am | The lead inspector and, where appropriate, social care regulatory inspector, meet the headteacher to highlight any reshaping of the inspection. |
| 8.45am | Team meeting to confirm the arrangements for the day. |
| 9.00am | Observe lessons, review documents, interview staff. |
| 12.15pm | Lunch |
| 1.00pm | Complete the inspection activity and finalise the evidence.
Team meeting to agree the key findings and final judgements.
Prepare for feedback and write draft paragraphs for the report. |
| 4.00pm | Feed back to the school proprietors and headteacher. |

37. Suggested activities while in the school.

- Meet with the headteacher, pupils (formally or informally) and key staff, including the Early Years Foundation Stage coordinator if appropriate.
- Review documents, including case studies and pupils' work.
- Analyse pupil, parent/carer and placing authority questionnaires.
- Meet with and talk to parents and carers if requested.
- Meet with and talk to proprietors if requested.
- Talk to placing authorities if requested (possibly by telephone).
- Observe lessons and give brief feedback to teachers.
- Observe break and lunchtimes and the start/end of the day.

- If residential or boarding, the social care inspector will observe the residential setting in the evening and/or morning. The lead inspector may find it helpful to join them in this activity.
38. The number and range of lessons observed will vary according to the type of inspection, the number of pupils on roll, the number of class groups, the number of teachers in the school and the number of inspectors on the team. Inspectors should make clear to the school during the initial telephone call to the headteacher that it is unlikely that all teachers will be observed and that the inspectors may only observe parts of lessons. While it is important that inspectors ensure they see sufficient teaching in the core subjects to be able to make a secure judgement against the regulations, they should also aim to observe a range of subjects taught, and include those which the school has a particular focus on, for example dance or physical education. On light-touch inspections, inspectors should sample a sufficient range and number of lessons to be able to confirm whether or not the school's overall judgement on the quality of teaching is accurate and that all regulations are being met.
 39. Inspectors should offer to provide brief feedback to teachers at the end of each lesson or arrange a mutually convenient time to do so. The feedback should be short and should focus on the strengths and areas for improvement.
 40. In a similar way, social care inspectors on integrated inspections will provide a brief feedback to boarding or care staff on the quality of their work, after inspecting a boarding house or residential provision.
 41. Before the team inspector leaves the school, or following the feedback to the school where the team inspector is present on both days, they will leave the lead inspector with evidence forms, completed sections of the Record of inspection evidence and judgements and paragraphs for the report. The paragraphs can be in bullet points but this should be agreed with the lead inspector at the beginning of the inspection. All sections and paragraphs should be in electronic form. The Record of inspection evidence and judgements will provide the lead inspector with a record of the main judgements for social care. Note that in children's homes that offer education, the social care inspector will write a separate report, published by Ofsted in a redacted form that does not identify the address of the school; and that only minimal information about the quality of the boarding provision is included within the section 162A education report. The guidance Writing inspection reports provides further details on this.⁹
 42. The lead inspector, at the end of the inspection and before leaving, will give feedback to the school. The social care inspector will give feedback on the judgements on the boarding provision. The headteacher may wish to invite the proprietor, governors and/or one or two members of senior staff to attend this meeting. This feedback must contain the main judgements as recorded in the inspection judgements form, the regulations not met and, in boarding and residential special schools, the national minimum standards that are not met, and the identified areas for improvement. The lead inspector may also agree with the school the content in the paragraph headed 'Information about the school'.

43. The light-touch inspection will follow a similar process, although inspectors will need to plan carefully to gain maximum benefit from their time in school. It is strongly recommended that they undertake part of the planning day in the school. This will enable them to check whether the school meets the new regulations for safer recruitment of staff, follow up on any regulations or national minimum standards that the school did not meet at the time of the last inspection and look at pupils' work or meet staff, as appropriate. The only day of inspection in the school should be used to gain sufficient evidence for making judgements on quality of education provided (standards in part 1) and spiritual, moral, social and cultural development of pupils (standards in part 2). The inspection report for a light-touch inspection is written under a reduced number of headings compared with standard and new school inspections.

44. The light-touch inspection day could be organised as follows.

8.30am	Meet with the headteacher to discuss self-evaluation and the inspection arrangements, although this may have occurred on the previous planning day if taken in the school.
9.00am	Observe lessons, scrutinise documents, meet staff.
12.15pm	Observe lunchtime arrangements and meet pupils.
12.45pm	Lunch
1.30pm	Observe lessons, scrutinise documents, meet staff.
3.00pm	Draw together inspection findings and evidence ready for feedback.
4.00pm	Feedback to the headteacher and/or proprietor.

Note that where there is a two-day boarding inspection taking place at the same time as a light-touch inspection, the section 162A light-touch inspection will also run over two days but will still only cover the limited number of regulations required to be checked on a light-touch inspection. On these integrated inspections of education and welfare it is expected that inspectors will work closely together over the two days and so the lead inspector may contribute to the collection of social care evidence and to the judgements on the national minimum standards. There will be joint feedback to the headteacher and/or proprietor. The first day may be spent on inspecting the quality of education provided (standards in part 1) and spiritual, moral, social and cultural development of pupils (standards in part 2). The second day can then be spent on joint working related to other sections of the regulations required on light-touch inspection and the national minimum standards, agreeing judgements, preparing feedback and writing.

45. On newly registered school inspections, the lead inspector will follow the same format as that for a standard inspection. In new school inspections the emphasis is on checking the actual implementation of policies and procedures which were deemed to be meeting minimum requirements at the registration inspection, as well as on checking compliance with any regulations which were not met at the time. The focus will therefore be on judging the quality of education and ensuring that procedures for safeguarding pupils are being implemented with rigour. The report will be written to the same headings as used on a standard section 162A inspection.

Assessing a material change application as part of a routine section 162A inspection

46. Occasionally, a school makes an application for a material change around the same time as the routine section 162A and/or the routine boarding inspection is due. When this occurs, and with the agreement of DfE, it is sensible and desirable that the material change is assessed as part of the inspection. The lead inspector should be alerted by the Managing Inspector, Independent Schools, the Managing Inspector, Integrated Boarding Inspections or an administrator in Delivery, so that they are clear that the material change is part of the inspection.
47. Where this occurs, the inspection team should assess the request for a material change in exactly the same way as they would if it were a focused visit. Evidence and judgements should be recorded in detail in the ROIEJ under the appropriate aspect sections (for example accommodation, curriculum), and feature in appropriate sections of the report. The 'Information about the school' section should contain a line about the nature of the material change sought by the school. The 'Overall evaluation of the school' section should have an additional sentence which summarises the team's judgement about whether the material change is recommended or not. Inspectors should note that there is no need to complete a separate advice note under these circumstances. If the school needs to do further work before the material change could be recommended, inspectors should record these points in the 'Recommendations'.
48. Further information on material change inspections is available in Conducting additional inspections of independent schools.¹⁰

Inspection reports

49. The lead inspector, and in boarding schools and children's homes that offer education, the social care inspector, will use the writing day to finalise the report, ensuring it complies with the requirements set out in the template and ¹⁰ Conducting additional inspections of independent schools (090060), Ofsted, 2011; www.ofsted.gov.uk/publications/090060.

*Writing inspection reports.*¹¹ The team inspector in a school with Early Years Foundation Stage must submit their part of the report and any relevant evidence for inclusion in the Record of inspection evidence and judgements prior to the end of the on-site day, but no later than the lead inspector's writing day. The lead inspector will also ensure that the Record of inspection evidence and judgements is fully completed and consistent with the judgements in the report and will compile the evidence forms to ensure that these fully support judgements. If the evidence forms are completed electronically they should be printed out and sent as hard copy, along with other handwritten evidence and questionnaires, to the inspection service provider at the end of the inspection. The report and Record of inspection evidence and judgements should be sent to the inspection service providers by the end of the writing day (please refer to Writing inspection reports).

50. On integrated boarding inspections, the social care inspector will send the boarding section to the lead inspector at the latest by 2pm on the writing day for inclusion in the inspection report. The social care inspector will also complete the recording of evidence required for the RSA toolkit, by incorporating the social care sections of the Record of inspections evidence and judgements into the 'organisation' section of the RSA. The lead inspector must check for consistency across the full report and ensure that if national minimum standards are not met, or the quality judgements are different from those of the school's self-evaluation, that this is explained in the text. Any queries should be discussed with the social care inspector. The boarding section should not normally require any alteration except for minor editing to fit house style and ensure consistency of messages.¹² The lead inspector will send the complete report to the Ofsted delivery directorate national quality assurance team by the end of the writing day. It is the responsibility of the quality assurance team to assure the quality of the social care inspector's contribution to the inspection report and send the report on to the inspection service provider, who will assure the overall quality. Please refer to Writing inspection reports for more detailed guidance.
51. In the case of a children's home, a separate report will be written by the social care inspector and will be subject to the same quality assurance process as for schools. This report will be published on the Ofsted website in a redacted form that does not identify the location or address of the home. The full report will be available to parents, carers and others on request from Ofsted. The lead education inspector will not be involved in this process but will ensure that the appropriate boarding judgements are included briefly in the section 162A report and Record of inspection evidence and judgements before sending it to the inspection service provider.

52. Following quality assurance by the inspection service provider, the full edited report will be returned to the lead inspector with a quality assurance reader evaluation form by the end of the reading day. The lead inspector has two days to make any amendments that are required, liaising with the social care inspector if necessary, and then returns the report to the inspection service provider by the end of the second day.
53. The inspection service provider will forward the draft report to the school. The school will have three working days in which to read the report and comment. This will then be returned electronically to the inspection service provider by 4pm on the third day.
54. The inspection service provider is responsible for considering the school's response to the draft report and where simple factual or grammatical corrections are needed will make these changes to the report and then forward it for HMI sign-off. Where the school's comments are more complex, the inspection service provider will contact the lead inspector by telephone to agree any changes to be made (more detailed guidance on writing the report and quality assurance arrangements is given in the inspection handbook). Where comments refer to inspection of the residential provision, the lead inspector may need to consult the social care inspector and so should ensure that they have a contact telephone number for this eventuality.
55. The final draft report will be sent to the quality assurance team for sign-off and returned to the inspection service provider by 6pm the same day.
56. The inspection service provider will write to the school acknowledging receipt of the headteacher's comments and confirming that they have been considered. The school will not normally receive any further drafts of the report.
57. Following sign-off by the national quality assurance team, the final published report will be sent by the inspection service provider to the school. This will be accompanied by a report cover letter in which there will be an initiation for the school to complete a post-inspection questionnaire. Please refer to Annex A for a timeline of the inspection process.
58. The DfE will receive the report and Record of inspection evidence and judgements from Ofsted. Where the school does not meet all regulations a letter will be sent by the DfE requesting that the school draws up an action plan within a specified timescale. Once the action plan has been received from the school, if the DfE requires advice on its suitability, the inspection service provider will arrange for advice to be provided, involving the lead inspector and social care inspector if necessary and feasible. The Advice note for evaluating a school's action plan and Advice note for evaluating a school's action plan – welfare only are used for this purpose, and can be found in 'Forms for inspectors' section of the inspection handbook.
59. Early Years Foundation Stage provision which is judged to be inadequate is followed up by Ofsted. Further details are given in the guidance Inspecting the Early Years Foundation Stage.

60. Reports of standard and light-touch section 162A inspections will be published on the Ofsted website according to the timeline below. Social care inspectors' reports of children's homes will be published on the Ofsted website in a redacted form and a full report will be available on request from Ofsted.

Identifying an inadequate independent day or boarding school after a section 162A or stand alone welfare inspection

61. If, at the end of the inspection, the inspectors, including the social care inspector in a residential or boarding school, have reached the conclusion that the school is inadequate in any of the judgements on the Inspection judgement form, including those for boarding and the Early Years Foundation Stage, a 'tick' in the grade 4 (inadequate box) must be recorded.
62. In all schools where there is a grade 4 recorded in any Inspection judgement form box, inspectors are asked to consider whether the school is a cause for concern. Inspectors should also consider whether the school is causing concern on the grounds of inadequate premises or accommodation, including poor security which may put children at risk. There is no 'hard and fast rule' and inspectors are asked to use their professional judgement on this matter, but it is likely that in most cases a school with an 'inadequate' judgement will give cause for concern and should be referred for consideration by the Managing Inspector, Independent Schools. To do so, inspectors are asked to complete, for independent day schools and integrated inspections, Form A – confirmation that an independent school is causing concern and send it to the inspection service provider together with the draft report and Record of inspection evidence and judgements at the end of the inspection.¹³
63. The Managing Inspector, Independent Schools will consider the information provided on the form and may, at that stage, hold a discussion with the lead inspector, before placing the report in one of the risk categories.
64. It is the responsibility of the inspection service provider to send the Form A – confirmation that an independent school is causing concern to the Managing Inspector, Independent Schools together with the final copy of the report and Record of inspection evidence and judgements which should also be sent to Ofsted via the datafeed in the normal way.
65. For stand-alone welfare inspections of boarding and residential schools only, the lead inspector should complete Form A – Confirmation that an independent boarding or residential special school is causing concern following a welfare inspection and send it directly to the Managing Inspector, Integrated Boarding Inspections, together with the draft report.¹⁴

66. The Managing Inspector, Integrated Boarding Inspections will consider the information provided on the form and may, at that stage, hold a discussion with the social care inspector, before placing the report in one of the risk categories.
67. The main purpose of both types of Form A is to alert the registration authority to the need for action and to prioritise those schools which require most urgent attention. The Form A will be sent to the DfE by the relevant managing inspector.
68. Children's homes are registered, inspected and regulated by Ofsted. If any national minimum standards for children's homes are not met or any aspect is found to be inadequate Ofsted, as the registration authority, will take steps to follow up on this.

Light-touch inspection

Additional inspections
These will normally be allocated two lead inspector days to include preparation, inspection and writing. Where there is residential provision a social care inspector will also be allocated to the inspection. (Please refer to annex A and B of Conducting additional inspections of independent schools for additional inspection timelines.)	all

Note that the days shown are full days on site. It is usual for the lead inspector to also spend part of the planning day on site. In addition, a writing day is allocated immediately following the last day of the inspection. The number in brackets shows the total days allocated including planning and writing days.

Social care inspector days are those spent on site. The inspectors will also have planning and writing time allocated.

*Additional team inspector days may be allocated for particular circumstances, for example where the school has split-site accommodation, a wide age range, a large number of pupils on roll, or if it has been deemed to be high risk.

Note that all schools which cater wholly or mainly for pupils with learning difficulties and/or disabilities, including children's homes which offer education, will not be eligible for a light-touch inspection and will have the standard tariff.

Note for schedulers

In the case of boarding schools a day for a social care inspector normally begins the evening before. This usually implies the evening of the planning day. Accordingly, such inspections should not be scheduled to begin on a Monday.

Inspectors must be scheduled to facilitate working together on the planning day and they must feed back together at the end of the inspection.

Where schedulers have been advised that the boarding provision is complex, additional social care inspector(s) should be attached to the team, rather than extend the length of the inspection.

One-day inspections on a Friday should be avoided because of the likelihood of late feedback on integrated inspections, and subsequent travel.
