January 2015: curriculum and qualifications

We will publish updates to the technical and vocational qualifications approved for inclusion in the 2017 school and college performance tables. These qualifications will be available for teaching from September 2015. The lists include qualifications in the following categories:

↑ Contents

- technical awards (key stage 4, levels 1 and 2)
- tech levels (16 to 19, level 3)
- applied general qualifications (16 to 19, level 3)
- substantial vocational qualifications at level 2 (16 to 19)

Only technical and vocational qualifications included on these lists will appear in school and college performance tables from 2017 onwards.

NEW

January 2015: governance

We will be publishing destination measures showing the 2012 to 2013 destinations of students who were included in the 2011 to 2012 key stage 4 or key stage 5 performance tables.

NEW

January 2015: finance

To prepare for its introduction in April 2015, we will put the early years pupil premium in place early in Blackpool, Bristol, Cambridgeshire, Hackney, North Yorkshire, Northamptonshire, and Stoke on Trent, from January 2015.

NEW

January 2015: pupils and governance

In an open letter to schools, Childcare and Education Minister Sam Gyimah has outlined government reforms that will make it easier for schools to offer nursery provision, including places for 2-year-olds (requires secure access login).

UPDATED

January 2015: staffing

Implementation of changes to the teachers' pension scheme .

UPDATED

April 2015: finance

The early years pupil premium will be available in all local authority areas. It will provide extra funding to school nurseries and others who deliver government-funded early education to disadvantaged children.

NEW

January 2015: curriculum and qualifications

The Association of Colleges, Association of School and College leaders (ASCL), Sixth-Form College Association (SFCA) and National Association of Head Teachers (NAHT) will publish guidance to help schools and colleges implement the new linear A levels and decoupled AS level.

NEW

September 2015: governance

We are extending the annual flu immunisation programme in line with recommendations by experts for all children aged 2 to 17. The extension will roll out gradually, with offers to all primary-school-aged children in key stage 1 in England from September 2015.

The NHS will co-ordinate the programme, with the expectation that immunisation will be available in schools in most areas. To be effective, immunisation needs to take place between September and December. Schools may wish to consider this when making their plans for the 2015 to 2016 academic year.

We will use materials from pilots to inform the development of further information and make it available to schools before the end of the 2015 summer term.
