Banbury School

The disposal of playing field land following which the academy will still exceed the playing field land required by the published guidance. The majority of the proceeds will be used to improving sports facilities for use by pupils and the community.

Other decisions

There have been 6 occasions where the panel has not approved the disposal but the government has. In every case money from the sale was earmarked to improve education and sports facilities in the local community.

2.1 Woodhouse Middle

The school wanted to sell surplus untended grassland that had not been used for sport for 5 years. The government approved the application and the money was dedicated to supporting a new library and improved changing facilities.

2.2 Clarborough Primary

This was originally a school based on two sites. A rebuild of the school meant one site became surplus. The government approved the sale of the surplus site and the money was earmarked for sports facilities at other local schools.

2.3 Elliott School

The school wants to enhance its academic and sporting provision. Its sporting facilities are dilapidated and out of date. The government approved the application. The sale will fund a new Multi-Use Games Area to host competitive sports fixtures such as football matches, which they cannot currently do. They will also replace their old gym with a state-of-the-art indoor facility with four sports courts.

2.4 Ingleton Middle

When the school was closed the site wasn't needed. The government approved the application. Proceeds from the sale were used to improve the changing rooms at Settle College.

2.5 Netley Primary

The local authority wants to sell a small part of the school's land. It wants to redevelop a unit for vulnerable children which neighbours the school and improve the primary school's facilities. The government approved the application. Delay could have affected the whole regeneration project with unhappy consequences for the children concerned.

2.6 Griff Special School

This land will be leased to a charity providing housing to senior citizens. We have agreed to this on the specific condition that council invests an amount equal to the value of the land in education or sport. The school itself has been closed for 8 years and the playing field land has not been used by a local school or the wider community in this time.

Sport England did not object to the council's planning application and at consultation, there were no objections to the loss of the unused playing field. The panel did not object to the actual loss of this unused playing field, but highlighted specifically that the proceeds of sale would be lost to sport or educational investment as this land will be 'peppercorn' leased to a housing association. Acting on the panel's advice we made this disposal conditional on the council investing an amount equal to the value of the school land, from funds not ring-fenced for education.

Background to decisions

There are very strict controls around the disposal of school playing field land. It is not the government or the Department for Education that instigates the disposal of school playing fields. It is the schools themselves and their local authorities that propose to convert these often surplus or unused fields to invest in school sport or education. Local authorities must consult widely prior to making an application.

The government will only give local authorities and schools permission to dispose of school playing fields if the sports and curriculum needs of the school and its neighbouring schools can continue to be met. All proceeds of any sales must be put back into improving sports or educational facilities.

Schools and local authorities do not apply to sell playing fields, they seek consent from the Secretary of State for Education to dispose. A disposal can include a lease of the playing fields to a third-party organisation with the fields, following investment and improvement, continuing to be used by the school.

The majority of consents since May 2010 are due to the closure or merger of an entire school site due to the re-organisation of education facilities by the local authority or academy trust. Some schools are leasing playing fields to sports clubs or others and will continue to use the playing fields. A small number of consents are in respect of small sections of playing field land that either isn't used by the school for sport or is not needed due to other facilities in place. No open school has disposed of its entire playing field, and in every case all of the money made by the local authority or school from the sale will be invested in local sports or education facilities. Every school must, by law, have access to enough playing field space to allow for its sports and curriculum needs to be met.

4.1 Olympic legacy

The government is determined to secure a significant and lasting legacy from the games, and to develop children's enjoyment of sport and physical activity from an early age. The government has demonstrated its commitment to this by providing over £450m of ring-fenced funding, which goes directly to primary schools to spend on improving PE and sport provision. Investment in the School Games also continues, with over 60% of schools now taking part. The School Games aims to enable every school and child to participate in competitive sport, including meaningful opportunities for young people with disabilities. Designed across 4 levels, for both primary and secondary pupils, it offers opportunities for young people to compete in intra-school, inter-school and regional competitions.

From February 2014 primary schools across England are able to apply for a share of an £18 million fund to improve outdoor spaces for PE and sporting activities. The lottery-funded scheme will be run by Sport England and will prioritise schools with limited outside space and a strong commitment to PE and sport. The schools are expected to receive an average of £30,000 each to help them vastly improve their sports provision. The funding will make sure they have better equipment and facilities such as turning a concrete playground into a quality space for PE and sporting activities.

The significant investment in improvements in primary school provision is backed by cross-government and external activity in a range of areas, from health to physical activity to initial teacher training. All children should have the opportunity to lead healthy, active lifestyles; to participate in and enjoy sport and physical activity both within and outside school; and to compete against their peers.

A new pilot programme to produce a group of primary teachers who specialise in PE has seen 61 trainees complete the course, and 59 more began in January 2014. The total 120 specialist teachers, who will support other teachers to develop their skills and improve quality of PE teaching, will start in primary schools from September 2014. The training schools are currently recruiting for a further 120 trainees to start training in September 2014, which will mean over 200 specialist primary PE/sport teachers in post by September 2015.
