1. Travel for children under 18 organised by education settings

1.1 Overseas trips for children under 18 organised by education settings

In line with the UK Government's advice, the Welsh Government currently advises against all overseas education trips for children under 18 organised by educational settings.

From 17 March, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) is advising British nationals against all non-essential international travel for an initial period of 30 days. The latest guidance on social distancing (<https://phw.nhs.wales/topics/latest-information-on-novel-coronavirus-covid-19/self-isolation-advice/>) also recommends avoiding all non-essential domestic trips and use of public transport, where possible.

1.2 Domestic trips for children under 18 organised by education settings

In line with the UK Government's advice, the Welsh Government is currently advising against domestic trips (residential and non-residential) for children under 18 organised by education settings.

1.3 Overseas trips for children under 18 organised by education settings currently taking place

From 23 March, FCO is advising British people travelling abroad to return to the UK immediately, while commercial routes are still available.

International travel is becoming very limited as air routes cease, land borders close and new restrictions are put in place that prevent flights from leaving.

Any overseas trips for children under 18 organised by educational settings currently taking place should arrange for the trip to end and for participants to return. You will need to take account of the fast-moving situation and plan accordingly, including the fact there are currently fewer commercial routes available.

While overseas, if someone in the travelling group develops coronavirus (COVID-19) symptoms (a new, continuous cough or a high temperature over 37.8 degrees), they should seek medical assistance and follow the advice of the local authorities. They should be ready to comply with local isolation, testing or quarantine requirements, and will need to rely on the local health system.

Educational settings should refresh their risk assessments and ensure measures are in place and agreed with parents in case children or adult supervisors exhibit symptoms that require self-isolation.

Whilst overseas, you should be prepared for border closures or lockdown measures being introduced at short notice. You must follow the advice of local authorities and also follow the latest FCO travel advice (<https://www.gov.uk/foreign-travel-advice>).

FCO teams around the world are working urgently to ensure that governments have sensible plans to enable the return of British and other travellers, and, crucially, to keep borders open for a sufficient period of time to enable returns to take place on commercial routes, wherever possible. FCO is also working with airlines to ensure as many people as possible can get commercial flights home.

UK travellers abroad should keep up to date with travel advice (<https://www.gov.uk/foreign-travel-advice>) for the country/territory they are in.

FCO has published advice (<https://www.gov.uk/guidance/travel-advice-novel-coronavirus#if-youre-abroad-and-you-want-to-return-to-the-uk>) for British nationals overseas who do not have immediate departure options available to them.

You should contact your airline, tour operator and travel insurer to find out what support they can offer.

If you're a UK national who needs emergency help from the UK Government while overseas, you can contact the nearest British embassy, consulate or high commission (<https://www.gov.uk/world/embassies>) or the FCO in London (<https://www.gov.uk/government/organisations/foreign-commonwealth-office>) on 0207 008 1500 for help or advice 24/7.

Read guidance on what you can do if you need financial help (<https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/financial-assistance-abroad>) and who you can contact for support when abroad (<https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/support-for-british-nationals-abroad-a-guide>).

You can subscribe to email alerts for the country or territory you are in via the 'Get email alerts' link on each travel advice page (<https://www.gov.uk/foreign-travel-advice>).

2.4 UK students and staff already studying or working overseas

All UK students and staff currently studying on exchanges (for example, Erasmus+, or terms abroad) or working temporarily overseas are advised to return to the UK now, while commercial routes are still available.

If UK students currently overseas for longer periods, for example those studying full degrees, are considering returning to the UK, they should do so while commercial routes are still available.

International travel is becoming very limited as air routes cease, land borders close and new restrictions are put in place that prevent flights from leaving.

If you are considering returning to the UK, you should contact your airline or travel company now, and keep up-to-date with FCO travel advice (<https://www.gov.uk/foreign-travel-advice>).

While overseas, if you develop coronavirus (COVID-19) symptoms (a new, continuous cough or a high temperature over 37.8 degrees), you should seek medical assistance and follow the advice of the local authorities. You should be ready to comply with local isolation, testing or quarantine requirements, and will need to rely on the local health system.

FCO is working with airlines to keep routes open and is calling for international action to keep routes open to enable British people to return home on commercial flights. We are also working around the clock to support those British travellers who are experiencing difficulties coming back to the UK.

You should continue to monitor the travel advice (<https://www.gov.uk/foreign-travel-advice>) issued by the FCO and comply with any coronavirus (COVID-19) control measures put in place by your host nation.

You should also contact your educational setting to advise them of your plans and they can provide you with the latest guidance.

If you are a permanent resident overseas and you plan to remain in your country of residence, you should follow the advice of the local authorities in the country in which you live.

If you intend to return to the UK, you should use appropriate methods of travel. You need to take account of the fast-moving situation and plan accordingly, including the fact there are currently fewer commercial routes available.

Travellers currently overseas should be prepared for border closures or lockdown measures being introduced at short notice.

If you are abroad, you must follow the advice of local authorities and also follow the latest FCO travel advice (<https://www.gov.uk/foreign-travel-advice>). 2.5 Students already on Erasmus+ exchanges or European Solidarity Corps exchanges

If you are currently on a placement, you are advised to return to the UK now. From 23 March, FCO is advising British people travelling abroad to return to the UK immediately, while commercial routes are still available.

International travel is becoming very limited as air routes cease, land borders close and new restrictions are put in place that prevent flights from leaving.

Contact your provider to let them know of your plans. You will need to take account of the fast-moving situation and plan accordingly, including the fact there are currently fewer commercial routes available.

While overseas, if you develop coronavirus (COVID-19) symptoms (a new, continuous cough or a high temperature over 37.8 degrees), you should seek medical assistance and follow the advice of the local authorities. You should be ready to comply with local isolation, testing or quarantine requirements, and will need to rely on the local health system.

Where this travel is funded through the Erasmus+ or European Solidarity Corps programmes, the Force Majeure clause in your contract may apply.
