Free qualifications for adults

If you are 19 or over and do not already have a level 3 qualification or higher, you can access a free level 3 qualification. Level 3 is equivalent to an advanced technical certificate or diploma, or A levels.

If you earn below the National Living Wage annually (£18,525) or are unemployed, from April you will also be able to access these qualifications for free.

Some of these qualifications are available to study online or part-time.

You may be able to get help to pay for childcare, travel and other costs.

The qualifications could help you:

- gain skills that employers value
- improve your job prospects
- earn a good wage

Eligibility

You can access one of the free level 3 qualifications if you are aged 19 or over and do not already have a level 3 qualification (equivalent to an advanced technical certificate or diploma, or A levels) or higher.

If you're 19 to 23 years old, you could also access additional qualifications for free. If you're in this age group, contact your local college or the National Careers Service for further information.

If you earn below the National Living Wage annually (£18,525) or are unemployed, from April you will also be able to access these qualifications for free. This is regardless of any prior qualifications you have.

If you are not eligible for this offer, Advanced Learner Loans are available to help you cover the costs of learning, which you pay back when you are earning over a certain amount.

How to apply

If you're eligible, you will not have to pay for your level 3 qualification. The government will pay the course fees.

- Use the National Careers Service course finder to see which courses are available for free in your local area or online. You can set the distance you are willing to travel.
- Contact the college or training provider. You can confirm they offer the qualification you're interested in, check the admissions criteria and apply for the course in the normal way.

- If you're accepted onto the course you will not have to pay a course fee. You may also be able to get help to pay for childcare, travel and other costs.

Skills Bootcamps

Skills Bootcamps offer free, flexible courses of up to 16 weeks. They help you to build up specialist in-demand skills and fast-track to an interview with an employer.

Skills Bootcamps are being delivered in partnership with employers, providers and local authorities to help people gain skills for life.

Subjects available

Skills Bootcamps are available in:

- digital courses such as digital marketing or coding
- technical training in skills like engineering or welding
- green skills like solar energy
- construction
- logistics (HGV driving)

View the list of Skills Bootcamps to see what's available in your area, or online, and what's coming soon. This list will grow as more Skills Bootcamps become available.

Eligibility

You are eligible to apply for a Skills Bootcamp if you are:

- aged 19 or over
- employed, self-employed, have recently become unemployed or are returning to work after a break
- serving a prison sentence and you are due to be released within 6 months of completing a Skills Bootcamp, or you are on temporary release

Some Skills Bootcamps have additional eligibility criteria.

How to apply

The list of Skills Bootcamps provides links and locations for existing, new and upcoming courses. You can find out which providers are offering courses in your area, and visit their webpage for further information.

Get advice and support

The National Careers Service offers free and impartial advice to help with decisions about careers, training courses and work.

Your local authority or Jobcentre Plus may offer additional free courses.

If you claim Universal Credit, you can apply for one of these free courses, provided it will improve your chances of securing work. Many Universal Credit claimants can currently take full-time training up to 12 weeks, and up to 16 weeks for a full-time Skills Bootcamp in England. Your local Jobcentre Plus can offer further guidance about this and help to identify the learning that works for you.

You may also be interested in work-based training, including apprenticeships. An apprenticeship is a real job where you learn, gain experience, and get paid. Find out more about apprenticeships and other government-funded training opportunities that can help you gain skills for life.
