Introduction

If you plan to start looking after other people's children, you will fall into one of the following categories:

- You are legally required to join one of our registers.
- You do not have to register but may do so voluntarily – for example, if you look after children over the age of 8.
- You cannot register – for example, you are only looking after children related to you (including if you are their step-parent or otherwise have parental responsibility for them).

The Childcare Act 2006 says that childcare is any form of care for a child, including education or any other supervised activity.

It is a criminal offence to provide unregistered childcare or to work from unapproved premises if you are legally required to register. Ofsted is responsible for making sure that only people who are suitable and ready to provide childcare are registered.

It is an offence to knowingly make a false or misleading statement in an application to register.

In order to register, you will need to know the kind of childcare you are planning to provide – in particular, how many children you will be looking after, what age they will be, and when and where you plan to look after them.

You will need to know whether you are disqualified from providing childcare, because if you are you will not be able to apply to register. If you are disqualified, you may be able to apply for a waiver.

You also need to know which register(s) you should apply for and which type of provider you should register as.

The childcare registers

Each childcare register has a different set of requirements that you must comply with once registered. The childcare registers are:

- Early Years Register – if you will be caring for children at any point between their birth and the 31 August after their fifth birthday.
- Compulsory part of the General Childcare Register – if you will be caring for children between the 1 September after their fifth birthday and their eighth birthday.
- Voluntary part of the General Childcare Register – if you are looking after children aged 8 and over, or are exempt from needing to register, you can choose to apply to register on this.

Find out more about the different early years and childcare registers.

Types of childcare

Types of childcare include:

- Childminder based at home ('childminder with domestic premises') – up to 4 people (including you) looking after children, partly or always in someone's home.
- Childminder based outside the home ('childminder without domestic premises') – up to 4 people (including you) looking after children somewhere that is not someone's home.
- 'Childcare on domestic premises' – 5 or more people looking after children, mostly or always in someone's home.

- 'Childcare on non-domestic premises' – any number of people looking after children somewhere that is not someone's home.

If you provide certain types of childcare, you do not need to register with Ofsted. This means you are 'exempt' from registration.

This page explains the type of registration called 'childcare on non-domestic premises'.

It covers who can apply to register as a childcare on non-domestic premises provider and the requirements and legal obligations you must meet.

You must register as a childcare on non-domestic premises provider if you meet all the following criteria:

- You care for a child or children under the age of 8.
- You look after the children for more than 2 hours a day and more than 14 days per year.
- You look after them on non-domestic premises (not in your or anyone else's home).

Childcare that falls into this category includes most nurseries, playgroups, before- and after-school clubs, holiday clubs and school-based early years provision.

If you fall into this category, you must register with Ofsted as a childcare on non-domestic premises provider unless you are exempt from registration.

Please note, if you are providing childcare in a school, you may need to register. To find out more, see our information on registering schools-based provision.

Being registered as a childcare on non-domestic premises provider carries significant safeguarding responsibilities. Once registered you will have the responsibility for the care of children and the protection of their welfare, including who else comes into contact with the children when they are in your care. This includes very young or otherwise particularly vulnerable children who are unable to communicate concerns or protect themselves. The application process is therefore designed to ensure that only those individuals who are competent and suitable to care for and be in regular contact with children are registered.

If you work from a home, you should register as a 'childcare on domestic premises' provider or as a 'childminder based at home'

If you are already registered and you want to add additional settings, find out more about adding another setting.

Suitability checks

This page explains the checks we carry out to make sure that you are suitable to look after children.

When you apply to register with Ofsted, we will check that you are suitable to care for children and/or be in regular contact with children. If you are registering as an organisation, who we check depends on:

- the type of organisation
- which registers you are applying to join
- the type of provision

You need to be 18 or over and have the right to work in the UK. Once registered, you must continue to meet the requirements of registration.

You are responsible for obtaining the required references and Disclosure and Barring Service (DBS) checks for those you employ as part of your childcare. Find out more at Childcare providers: who needs a DBS check.

Find out more about how we determine your suitability.

Schools and education-related provision

Any school provision during school hours for children who are registered pupils from 1 September following their fifth birthday is considered education, not childcare. These providers cannot register with Ofsted – they should register with the Department for Education (DfE) as an education provider. They will need to implement the early years foundation stage (EYFS) statutory framework for young children, unless the DfE grants an exemption from the learning and development requirements.

Independent schools that cater for children under the age of 5 and meet the definition of an independent school must register with the DfE. They will need to implement the EYFS statutory framework for young children, unless the DfE grants an exemption from the learning and development requirements.

Both independent and state-funded schools may provide childcare as part of nursery provision and/or outside of school hours. If this meets the school-based early years and childcare provision exemptions set out in sections 34(2) and 53(2) in part 3 of the Childcare Act 2006, the school cannot register that provision.

If schools do not meet the school-based early years and childcare provision exemptions, or a different exemption, then they will be required to register that provision.

For more information, see our guidance on registering and inspecting school-based provision.

Legal responsibility for registration

Your application must be submitted by the person or organisation who will become the 'registered person'.

A registered person might be:

- an individual who is going to be the provider of a childcare setting(s)
- an organisation that is going to be the provider of a childcare setting(s)

If you are registering as an organisation, you must nominate an individual to deal with matters relating to the registration and to oversee (either alone or jointly with others) the management of the provision. We refer to this person as the 'nominated individual'(NI).

The NI is responsible for applying to register the provision and will act as the primary point of contact with Ofsted on issues relating to the application and registration.

Our guidance Your childcare business: legal structure explains the types of organisations and roles that make up the legal structure of your childcare. This also includes an organisation's responsibilities to remain compliant with registration.

Where you can operate as a childcare on non-domestic premises provider

If you are registered as a childcare on non-domestic premises provider, you can only operate from non-domestic premises, such as:

- a purpose-built childcare building
- a church hall
- a school
- an office building
- an outdoor area

Under this registration, you will not be able to provide childcare from your or anyone else's home.

You will need to tell us if you have sole use of the premises. If you do not, you will need to provide details of other organisations who use the premises.

We will aim to visit the non-domestic premises you will be operating from within 8 weeks of our initial review of your application. We will check that they are safe, suitable and meet the requirements of the register you are applying for before approving them.

You must make sure that the premises where you will be providing childcare are fit for purpose and suitable for children of the age of those you will be caring for, and for the type of activities to be provided. This includes overall floor space and outdoor spaces. You may operate exclusively outdoors such as from woodlands or from any vehicle such as a play bus.

Your premises must be ready to use as soon as your registration is granted. This means any significant building work must have been completed.

If your premises are not ready to use, we will not be able to approve your application.

Operating from multiple premises

If you want to provide childcare from more than one non-domestic premises, you must say so in your registration application. You will need to submit this and a separate EYS form for each setting you want to register. All premises must be approved by Ofsted.

If you need to add more non-domestic premises to your registration after you have registered, you must apply for approval by submitting an EYS form for each additional premises.

If you want to expand into space that is next to, or close to, your existing premises and you intend to operate it as one setting across both premises, this may count as an expansion of your existing premises. In this case, you would not need to register it as new premises. You can submit an expansion request by completing the online notification form. Find out more on our page about expanding a registered setting into new premises.

All settings must be approved by Ofsted. It is an offence to operate from unapproved premises.

Banned dog breeds

Ofsted and the Department for Education are clear that banned dog breeds are not compatible with childcare. Banned dog breeds (meaning dogs to which section 1 of the Dangerous Dogs Act 1991 applies, including the XL Bully type) must not be kept at or be present on the premises at any time.

We have taken steps to help us identify where a banned dog breed may be present on childcare premises. If we find a banned dog breed on the premises, we will take action to keep children safe.

How many children you can look after

Your staffing arrangements must meet the needs of all children and ensure their safety.

This means that you must make sure that children are adequately supervised by the right number of people. The number of children being looked after per person is referred to as the staff-to-child ratio.

The ratio that you must provide depends on which register you are on and the ages of the children you are caring for.

Find out more about specific ratios on the individual requirements page for each register: Registration requirements.

Unsupervised contact with children

You must not allow anyone who has not had their suitability checked by you to have unsupervised contact with children.

Once a person's suitability has been confirmed, you as the provider remain responsible for their ongoing suitability.

How we determine your suitability

The law states that an applicant must be an individual or organisation that is 'suitable' to provide early years or later years childminding or childcare provision. This is a requirement set out in legislation for each type of childcare provider that registers with Ofsted on the Early Years Register and/or the General Childcare Register. The law sets different requirements for each type of childcare role.

Once registered, the provider must remain suitable at all times. Other people associated with your registration who care for or are in regular contact with children must also remain suitable.

If we decide that you or anyone associated with your application are not suitable, we may refuse your application.

Read more about how we determine suitability and the types of checks we carry out: Ofsted suitability checks for childminders and childcare providers.

Suitability checks

We carry out checks on all childcare applicants and anyone associated with an application to make sure they are suitable to care for and be in regular contact with children. We also carry out checks on certain people who want to join an active registration.

The checks we carry out vary depending on which register you are applying to join. Some will need to be arranged by you; we will arrange the others.

If you are a registered childcare provider and are making a new application to register, we may be able to carry over checks from your previous application. This means that new checks might not be required. We will contact you if you are in this situation.

If you have recently resigned your registration and are making a new application, you may be able to carry over your previous checks if it is less than 3 months since you were registered.

You will need to arrange:

- a DBS check (an 'enhanced DBS check with barred lists' for the 'childcare workforce') – you can apply for DBS checks through the Ofsted DBS application service
- a health declaration form signed by you and signed or stamped by your GP (if you are applying to join the Early Years Register)
- a certificate of good conduct (if you have lived abroad in the last 5 years)
- references (if you are applying to join the Early Years Register)

Checks we carry out include:

- a 'known to CMA' check (for people who have previously applied to or been registered with a CMA)
- a review of our records to see whether you are currently, or have been previously, known to Ofsted
- a local authority children's services check(s)
- a military check (where applicable)

People caring for children

You are responsible for completing checks for anyone you employ at the provision to ensure that they are suitable to work with or be in regular contact with children. This includes obtaining the required references and DBS checks.

All volunteers will need to have an enhanced DBS with children's barred list check if they carry out childcare that meets the definition of regulated activity. (Volunteers were previously exempt from being considered for regulated activity if they were supervised, but this exemption was removed on 1 September 2026.)

You can find full information about these checks on our suitability checks page.

Training and qualifications

You are responsible for making sure that any staff working with children have the training and qualifications they need to meet the requirements for registration.

Before you register as a childcare on non-domestic premises provider, you will need to make sure that any required training (for example safeguarding and first aid) has been completed.

The training required depends on which register you are applying to join. Find out more about registration requirements for providers.

Training requirements for the different Ofsted registers

To be registered on the Early Years Register:

- you must identify an individual to take on the role of designated safeguarding lead, and they must attend an effective safeguarding training course as set out in the EYFS framework
- you must demonstrate that you understand how to identify and appropriately respond to signs of possible abuse and neglect and how to implement policies and procedures to keep children safe

- at least one person looking after children on the premises must have a current first-aid certificate – for people caring for young children and babies, this must be a paediatric first-aid certificate and must be renewed every 3 years
- you must appoint an appropriate and suitable manager who will manage the setting – they should have a minimum level 3 childcare qualification

If you are applying to register as a before- or after-school or holiday club provider, you do not have to appoint a manager with a level 3 qualification. As part of your application, we will assess your understanding of the requirements, should you choose to work with younger children in the future.

To join the compulsory part of the General Childcare Register:

- you or someone working for you must have attended child protection training
- at least one person looking after children must have an appropriate first-aid qualification
- you must appoint an appropriate and suitable manager who will manage the setting

To join the voluntary part of the General Childcare Register:

- at least one person looking after children must have an appropriate first-aid qualification
- at least one person looking after children must have either a minimum level 2 qualification in an area of work relevant to the childcare you are providing, or training in the common core skills
- you must appoint an appropriate and suitable manager who will manage the setting

Registration visits

Everyone applying to join the Early Years Register will receive a registration visit. This will take place once all your checks are complete. You will have been given a proposed registration visit date as part of our initial review of your application, and this date will also be included in your acknowledgement email. If all required checks are completed in time for this date, an inspector will contact you to confirm the exact time and any arrangements needed. The inspector will give you the opportunity to discuss and/or provide information on any equalities duties, including reasonable adjustments.

As part of your registration visit, we will review your knowledge and understanding of any completed child protection and safeguarding training. This will include assessing your ability to recognise, respond to, and appropriately report or refer any concerns relating to the safety and wellbeing of children, including concerns about the conduct or behaviour of staff or other people working with children.

If you only apply to join the General Childcare Register, you will receive either a visit or a video call to check your understanding of the requirements for registration.

A registration visit will include the following:

- We will assess your suitability to be a childcare provider, care for children and/or be in regular contact with children.
- We will check the documentation that you need in order to register, and verify your identity.
- We will carry out a full tour of the premises in which you will be looking after children inside and outside (even areas that are not being used for childcare). We may also check any additional premises you are planning to use. We will not explicitly check whether you have approval from your landlord to work from your premises. However, you will be expected to comply with the relevant legal requirements. If we become aware that you have not complied with these, we will take this into account when we assess your application.
- We will check your knowledge and understanding of the requirements of the register(s) you have applied to join, and of your safeguarding responsibilities.
- If you are applying to join the Early Years Register, we will check your understanding of safer eating and safer sleeping requirements.
- You must demonstrate that you have the appropriate skills and knowledge to provide childcare, and a clear understanding of your role and responsibilities in providing it.
- If anything has come up during our checks that we need to discuss with you, we may do this during our visit, or we may contact you separately.
- If we need to discuss any information with anyone associated with your application, we may do this during our visit, or we may contact them separately.

Ofsted's code of conduct sets out the expectations for inspectors and providers during Ofsted inspections and visits.

Documents to show the inspector

Inspectors will ask to see the following documents during your registration visit:

Document type	Examples
Photo ID	Passport or driving licence
Proof of address (2 pieces of evidence)	Gas, electricity, water or council tax bill, or a letter from a government agency
	Credit card, bank or mortgage statement
Proof of any name changes	Marriage certificate or decree absolute
Employment history	CV or details of where you have worked
First-aid training	Paediatric first-aid certificate
Childcare training	Certificates
DBS checks	Certificates for everyone making up the registered person
Driving documents	Driving licence, car insurance and MOT certificate (if you will be driving children)

Additional checks for childcare on non-domestic premises providers

If you have applied to register as an organisation on the Early Years Register, the registration visit and interview will take place with the nominated individual. The inspector will check that you – as the nominated individual – fully understand the legal responsibilities of your role.

If you are registered as a sole trader or individual owner, the registration visit and interview will take place with you.

You are responsible for demonstrating that the provision meets all the requirements. Therefore you must show the inspector how you will make sure that the manager is running the setting properly, for example by setting suitable policies about safeguarding and recruitment.

The inspector will also check:

- that you and your staff meet the training and qualification requirements and understand the number and age of children you can care for (staff-to-child ratio) for the register(s) you are joining
- how much space you have for each child
- how you will organise your space to meet the children's learning, development and welfare needs
- your premises' heating, ventilation, natural light and the general state of repair and cleanliness
- that the children have access to outdoor play (this does not necessarily have to be on the premises), and any necessary arrangements for this
- that there are enough suitable kitchen, toilet and nappy-changing facilities
- that you and your staff will deliver educational programmes to help children learn and develop

The inspector will also check that you have suitable procedures for hiring staff, including processes for:

- recruitment
- getting DBS checks
- obtaining details of employment history, references and any other necessary checks, such as checks on an employee's physical and mental health

Deferring your registration visit

We will only defer your registration visit in exceptional circumstances.

We may agree to defer your registration visit for up to 16 weeks if there are:

- unexpected delays to building work
- exceptional personal circumstances, such as short-term illness, injury or hospitalisation for surgery, or a death in the family

Requests should be made at the earliest opportunity, by emailing enquiries@ofsted.gov.uk from your registered email address. We will consider each case separately and on its own merits.

If you fail to attend your registration visit or do not provide us with sufficient information, we may have to make a suitability decision using the limited information we hold. This is likely to lead to your application being refused.

Registration costs

You must pay an application fee when you apply for each register that you want to join, and for each additional setting you want to register. The fee depends on which register(s) you are joining.

After you have registered, you will pay an annual fee for each setting, starting one year after the date on your registration certificate. We will give you notice when this fee is due.

If you join the Early Years Register you can join the General Childcare Register at the same time with no additional cost. It is important to make sure you pay your annual fee; otherwise we may take steps to cancel your registration.

Find out more about registrations fees for childminders, nannies, and other childcare providers.

Additional costs that are not part of the registration

Before you apply you will also need to pay for any training and certificates you need, as well as professional costs such as insurance.

Possible outcomes of your application

When we have all the information we require, we will make a decision about your application.

If we have carried out a registration visit, we may tell you the outcome of your application at the end of the visit. If we need any further information the inspector will explain this to you.

There are two possible outcomes:

- register
- refuse

If your application is successful, we will send you a certificate of registration. Certificates are issued once we have completed all required processes.

> If you are applying to register on the Early Years Register and/or the compulsory part of the General Childcare Register, you cannot look after children until you have the certificate.

If we decide to refuse your application, we will serve you with a notice of intention to refuse. You will have the chance to make an objection to our intention to refuse.

If your objection is unsuccessful, we will serve you with a notice of decision to refuse. At this stage, you will have the opportunity to appeal. Your appeal will be considered by the external body First-tier Tribunal (Care Standards). We will explain to you how this works and the timeframes for making an objection or making an appeal.

If you are applying to register on the voluntary part of the General Childcare Register, you can withdraw your application at any time.

Conditions of registration

On occasion, we may impose conditions on your registration. We do this to reduce potential risk to children. We can impose a condition at the point of registration or after you have registered. You can request to vary or remove a condition after you have registered. Our early years and childcare enforcement policy explains when we may do this.

It is an offence to fail, without reasonable excuse, to comply with a condition of registration.

If your registration is granted

Once you have received your certificate, you can begin to work as a childcare on non-domestic premises provider.

You will receive a letter with your certificate explaining what you need to do as a childcare provider, including your ongoing responsibility to make sure that you comply with all the relevant requirements at all times. These include maintaining an appropriate first-aid qualification and public liability insurance.

The registers have different requirements. You need to comply with all the requirements for each register you are on. If you are on both, you need to comply with the requirements of both. These apply even if you are not currently caring for children. Find out more about registration requirements for providers.

If you are unable to meet the relevant requirements at any point after you have registered, you should consider resigning your registration or we may take steps to cancel it.

Certificate of registration

The certificate sets out:

- the date of registration
- the unique reference number (URN)
- the register(s) the provider is now registered on
- the specific provider type

- the name of the registered person
- the address(es) where you will be providing childcare
- any conditions that apply to the registration

If you are registered on the General Childcare Register, you must display your certificate at all times. If you are registered only on the Early Years Register, you should show your certificate on request.

Withdrawing your application

You can withdraw your application at any time, unless we have served you with a notice of intention to refuse your application. If we have served a notice of intention, you can only withdraw with our agreement. For example, we are unlikely to accept a withdrawal where there are safeguarding concerns. To request a withdrawal, you will need to contact us from your registered email or mobile phone and provide your URN. Email enquiries@ofsted.gov.uk or call 0300 123 1231.

If you are applying to register on the voluntary part of the General Childcare Register only, you can withdraw your application at any time.

If you withdraw after the application fee has been paid, your fee will not be refunded.

If you withdraw your application and want to re-apply in the future, you must:

- complete a new application
- pay a new application fee

If we have safeguarding concerns about you, and you withdraw your application before we issue a notice of intention to refuse your application, we will consider this information if you apply again in the future.

Making changes to your application

There are certain changes you need to tell us about after you have submitted your application.

If additional people become associated with your application after the application is processed, you will need to complete the relevant forms – find out more at report new people in the setting. This may mean that your application is delayed, as we will need to complete checks on this/these person(s) before we can proceed with the application.

After registration: changes you need to tell us about

Once registered, you must let us know about certain changes to your personal details and circumstances.

If you change the premises where you provide childcare, you must make an application for additional premises so we can approve the new premises before you provide care from them. We will then issue a new certificate for those premises when we have approved them.

It is an offence to operate on premises that have not been approved by Ofsted.

You must tell Ofsted about changes to any of the following as soon as possible, and within no more than 14 days of the change happening:

- your name
- your personal address or telephone number
- your registered address and any contact details
- the address of the childcare premises (you must obtain prior approval to operate from those premises where appropriate by completing an EYS form
- the legal structure or entity of your business (this requires a new application) – see Making changes to your organisation: when you need to register again
- the type of childcare you provide (for example, if you change the days or hours when you look after children, or there is any change to the premises affecting the space available to children and the quality of childcare)
- the manager or nominated individual
- for committee-run childcare, the membership of the committee

- for an organisation that has been set up solely or mainly to provide childcare, the people who make up the organisation, including partners, directors, company secretaries and any other members of the governing body
- if you are registered on the General Childcare Register, the number of children you are caring for

In addition to the above, if you are on the Early Years Register the EYFS framework sets out the full list of changes that you must notify us about. If you are registered on the General Childcare Register, the changes you must notify us about are set out in the General Childcare Register Regulations 2008. Find out more about registration requirements for providers.

To inform us about any changes, you must email enquiries@ofsted.gov.uk from your registered email address and include the following information:

- the details of the change(s)
- your unique reference number (URN)
- the date of the change(s)

If you fail to notify Ofsted of changes within 14 days, we can take action against you, which could include taking steps to cancel your registration. Find out more about the enforcement action we may take in our enforcement policy.

Adding or moving a setting

After you have registered, if you plan to move your setting to new premises (for example, a new building) or plan to operate from additional premises, you must apply for approval to add additional premises to your registration.

We need to approve any additional premises before you can begin operating from there. We may need to carry out an approval visit at the new premises or an inspection at one of your existing settings before we can make an approval decision.

You will need to pay an application fee and an annual registration fee for each setting where childcare is provided.

See our guidance on applying to register a new setting.

Expanding into additional premises

If you are expanding into new premises next to, or close to, your existing setting and you intend to operate as one setting across both premises, you may be able to apply to add new premises to your setting's existing registration. Find out more about expanding a registered setting into new premises.

When and how to notify us about serious incidents and significant events

You must notify us if certain types of serious incident or significant event take place. You need to make sure that you are aware of which types of incidents do or do not need to be reported to us, as failure to notify Ofsted of significant events without a reasonable excuse is a criminal offence.

> This must be done as soon as is reasonably possible, and in any event within 14 days of the incident.

For providers on the Early Years Register, the EYFS framework sets out the full list of events or incidents you must notify us about. If you are registered on the General Childcare Register, the events or incidents you must notify us about are set out in the General Childcare Register Regulations 2008. Find out more about registration requirements for providers.

It is an offence to fail to notify Ofsted of certain notifiable events within 14 days.

Find out more:

- Serious childcare incidents
- Significant events

If anyone makes a complaint to us about your childcare or raises a concern, we will assess the information we have been given and may contact you to discuss this further. If the information suggests that you have breached any of the requirements of your registration, we may carry out an inspection, a visit or regulatory activity. Find out more about our enforcement policy.

Inspections

Ofsted carries out regular inspections of registered childcare providers to make sure that they are continuing to meet the requirements of their registration(s). This is a different process from our registration visits.

If you are on the Early Years Register, your first inspection will take place within 18 months of your registration date. After that, we will inspect your provision within a 4-year window although we may inspect more frequently.

We inspect 10% of providers who are only registered on the General Childcare Register each year.

If you are on both registers, we will inspect you as per the Early Years Register.

Find out more about inspections:

- Being inspected as a childminder or childcare provider
- Ofsted inspections of early years and childcare providers
- Carrying out Childcare Register compliance inspections

Publishing your registration details

Once your provision is registered, we automatically publish the following information on Ofsted's find an inspection report website and in our official statistics:

- your unique reference number (URN)
- your date of registration
- your register (for example, the Early Years Register)
- your provider type (this is 'childcare on non-domestic premises')
- the conditions of your registration

- your available inspection report cards
- an outcome summary (if we have looked into a concern or notification and we or the provider take action due to a breach of requirements)

We will also publish your setting's name and address.

Resigning your registration

If you want to resign your registration (or a setting within your registration), contact us or tell the inspector during a visit.

Everything that has been published on our reports website about your setting will remain for 5 years after you resign. This includes:

- the name of the nominated individual
- your inspection report card(s) (if you were only registered on the General Childcare Register, your inspection outcome letters will remain online for 12 months after)
- details of any previous conditions of registration
- any information we have previously published about complaints or compliance action taken against you (this will remain online for 5 years after publication)

We do this so that people can view this information in case:

- you decide to register to provide childcare again after a short period
- you decide to start providing childcare at a different address
- you decide to register to provide childcare through a new organisation – for example, if you want to set up a new company to provide childcare
- someone else decides to register to provide childcare from the same address

Further support

You can contact your local authority for information and advice about registration. Local authorities are legally obliged to provide this support.

Information about how Ofsted regulates registered providers is set out in the early years and childcare enforcement policy.

The legal basis for our work

The legislation under which we regulate childcare providers, together with subsequent regulations and standards, includes the following:

- Childcare Act 2006
- Childcare (Early Years Register) Regulations 2008
- Statutory framework for the early years foundation stage
- Childcare (General Childcare Register) Regulations 2008
- Childcare (Early Years and General Childcare Register) (Common Provisions) Regulations 2008
- Early Years Foundation Stage (Welfare Requirements) Regulations 2012

The childcare exemptions are set out in the Childcare (Exemptions from Registration) Order 2008.
